CREAM PUFFS FELL ATHLETES

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—Some 25 persons, including Canadian basketball players and Puerto Rican delegates, were reported to have suffered milk food poisoning on a plane en route to the Pan-American Games Wednesday night.

They became nauseated after apparently eating cream puffs while dining on a flight between Caracas, Venezuela, and Rio de Janeiro.

A Canadian girl basketball player, Beverly Coward of Vancouver, a nurse, was taken to a hospital when the 26-member Canadian men's and women's basketball group arrived here early Thursday.

MLAs BUSY

Inquiry
Verdict
Soon

By FRANK RUTTER

(See earlier story page 15)
Verdict of the highway graft inquiry is expected by weekend.

The 13 MLAs on the inquiry met this morning at 9:30 for their second in-camera session. They planned to meet again at 2 p.m. and tonight in an effort to come to a speedy decision on the report they will make to the cabinet after six weeks of investigations.

The next cabinet meeting is Monday, and it is likely that the report will be made public immediately afterwards.

The inquiry moved today from the law courts, where its public hearings were held, to the legislative buildings, where it first sat as the House public accounts committee.

Today's meetings were in the Social Credit caucus room.

The public hearings ended at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday. The MLAs met privately until 4:45

GENERAL APPROACH

They discussed the general approach they would make to their report.

Today they got down to the meat: whether or not the allegations of graft against Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi and his men are true.

Mr. Gagliardi was heading for Kamloops later today, but said he will be back in Victoria next week.

Social Credit members of the inquiry feel that it will not take long to assess the evidence heard in the past six weeks. They believe their report could be ready late tonight.

But Opposition MLAs say it will probably take until Friday.

Nearly all the questioning from the MLAs at the inquiry came from the New Democrats and Liberal leader Ray Perault.

It is likely that they will want more time to discuss the answers.

The Socreds have an eight-to-five majority on the inquiry.

It is possible that the opposition members might file a minority report if there is any disagreement. If so, it was understood that it would be made public immediately.

Last Official Act Performed by John D.

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—To all intents and purposes, today was the end of the road for the Diefenbaker government.

The real end comes at noon Monday, when the resignations of Mr. Diefenbaker and his administration become effective after five years and 10 months of Conservative rule in Canada.

But today the finality of the changeover from a Conservative to a Liberal government was underlined by outgoing Prime Minister Diefenbaker himself.

As he presented citizenship certificates to nine young men and women members of the 4-H Clubs of Canada, Mr. Diefenbaker said he was performing his "last official act as Prime Minister." (See page 17.)

He appeared cheerfully resigned to his fate (now he becomes leader of the official opposition), and made note of the fact that in Canada the change was being made in an "almost imperceptible" way, unlike some other countries where changes were accompanied by violence.

LAST MEETING

Then Mr. Diefenbaker attended what was almost certainly to be the last meeting of his cabinet.

Only a few reporters were on hand to see the ministers enter the chamber. None of the ministers had any news to announce.

When the meeting broke up, there were no reporters present, at this, the final gathering. This may have been because the meeting lasted for little more than one hour and broke up before noon.

Over the nearly six years of the Diefenbaker regime press gallery reporters had been used to morning meetings ad-

CARDONA GRANTED COSTA RICAN EXILE

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI)—Costa Rica announced officially today it has granted political asylum to Jose Miro Cardona, the Cuban exile leader currently embroiled in a controversy with the U.S. state department.

The official announcement was made by Costa Rican President Francisco J. Orlich.

Orlich said Miro, president of the Cuban revolutionary council in Miami, "will not be permitted to engage in any political activity, such as setting up a (Cuban) government-in-exile."

IN CUBA

Soviet Troop Pullout Denied

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a direct challenge of President Kennedy's reassurances on Soviet troop withdrawals, Senator Kenneth Keating charged today there has been "no substantial reduction" of Russian military forces in Cuba since mid-November.

Keating, a New York Republican, said in a speech prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors that he has information that new Soviet arrivals have about matched the departures.

"There were and are in the neighborhood of 17,000 men there," said the senator. "No functional units have been withdrawn."

Kennedy, who will address the editors' annual meeting Friday, told his April 3 press conference that 4,000 Russian troops had left in the preceding month, in addition to the 5,000 pulled out in November.

At the height of last fall's crisis over Russian missile bases in Cuba, there were an estimated 21,000 to 22,000 Russian troops on the island. Thus the president's report indicated a remaining total of only 12,000 to 13,000.

EVIDENCE LACKING

"There is no reliable evidence whatsoever of a decline in Soviet military strength or capability since those first withdrawals in November," Keating said.

He charged also that some U.S. Navy ships have specific orders not to play searchlights on the small vessels which he said constantly ply Cuban and Caribbean waters at night. He mentioned "navy personnel" as his source of this information.

Despite U.S. surveillance designed to block the shipment of weapons, personnel and other tools of subversion to other Latin American countries, Keating told the editors:

"None of these ships are ever searched by U.S. patrols."

"How can we hope to get evidence of support of subversion if we don't investigate these small scale but very numerous operations?"

Big Advance Scored By Canada Economy

OTTAWA (CP)—The value of Canada's national output rose eight per cent last year in the largest economic advance since the boom year of 1956, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The bureau's summing up of 1962 economic progress put gross national product—value of all goods and services produced—at $40,401,000,000 compared with the revised 1961 figure of $37,421,000,000.

Higher prices accounted for about one-quarter of the increase. The volume of production rose 6.2 per cent, with gross national product measured in constant 1957 dollars rising to $37,195,000,000 from $35,023,000,000.

Last year's economic growth compares with the rise of 12.7 per cent in gross national product in 1956—sparked largely by capital investment—when the volume of production rose 8.6 per cent.

Today's report bore out predictions by the Progressive Conservative government that GNP last year gained eight per cent. But government spokesmen had over-estimated the volume gain.

Former trade minister George Hees, in a year-end statement, had put the gain in volume of production at seven per cent.

Consumer spending was the major factor behind the 1962 expansion, rising 5.2 per cent. Personal disposable income after taxes rose eight per cent and the volume of personal savings jumped by more than 50 per cent.

Capital investment advanced 4.8 per cent. Exports of goods and services rose 7.8 per cent, outstripping a 5.7-per-cent rise in imports.

Government spending was another expansive factor, rising 7.2 per cent, mainly reflecting larger outlays by provincial and municipal governments.

Today's report showed a slowing down in the rate of growth in the final quarter of last year.

Some see government expenses as in a glass, darkly.

Key Areas Threatened

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Premier Souvanna Phouma said today that fighting has broken out in the strategic base of Phone Savan near the Plain of Jars and the situation is "grave."

Phone Savan is located between the Plain of Jars and Khang Kha, a town that was held by Gen. Koing Le, commander of the Neutralist forces in the area. Presumably the fighting is between the Communist Pathet Lao and the Neutralists.

Phouma said he did not know how many casualties were involved up to this point. He made the disclosure of the new fighting to a group of dignitaries assembled at his residence for a Lao New Year's party.

Earlier, the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces, already in virtual control of the key Plain of Jars, were reported spreading their operations in southern Laos.

Unconfirmed, but undenied, reports received here said up to five Pathet Lao battalions supported by Red Viet Minh troops from North Vietnam were filtering through Maekay and Tchepone toward the south.

URGENT MEETINGS

Phouma held urgent meetings with his key advisers on ways to head off a new civil war.

It appeared that the Neutralist premier would not go to the critical Plain of Jars in central Laos again before the weekend, despite reported fighting that resulted in Pathet Lao capture of three Neutralist towns.

Pathet Lao leader Prince Souphanouvong said Laos faces the prospect of a new civil war.

THIS WORLD OF OURS People and Things

(Times News Services)

LONDON—Magician William McComb whipped his defence exhibit "A" out of the basket—a white rabbit. The rabbit's name was Ferguson. His nose twitched. McComb, charged with parking near a theatre during no-parking hours, produced Ferguson as mitigating evidence.

He explained to the magistrate that he has eight rabbits to carry around and they are heavy, which is why he prefers to park as near to the theatre as possible.

"If I carry them through the streets," he said, "the RSPCA (Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals) would be down on me like a ton of bricks."

And with a flourish Ferguson materialized, held by his long ears.

Magistrate Nigel Robinson did not applaud. He said: "I'm afraid that won't help me, Mr. McComb. So will you kindly put it away?"

Ferguson disappeared into the basket.

McComb was then invited to produce a £2 10s ($7.50) fine from his wallet.

"These are extraordinary circumstances," Graham said. "He is one of the most dedicated young men I have ever met. I have had people from all over the world . . . as well as psychologists . . . write me and ask why I encourage this marriage since she is only 17."

NEW DELHI, India—United States Ambassador John K. Galbraith decided today to rename the family's pet kitten after a misunderstanding that threatened to grow into an international incident.

Galbraith was told a Moslem leader in Lahore, Pakistan, thought the kitten was named Mohammed after the Moslem prophet and had called for a public protest because of the "insult" to the prophet.

The Canadian-born ambassador said it was all a mistake, but the kitten will get a new name anyway.

"My children were given the cat some time ago on their visit to Ahmedabad," he said. "They named it not Ahmed (a derivative of Mohammed) but Ahmedabad, after its birthplace."

"But they think that a kitten should not, however innocent, be the cause of trouble or concern. They prefer to rename it Gujera."

Today, however, there had been little expectation that Mr. Diefenbaker or any of his ministers would be making any newsworthy statements.

A photographer was on hand for the break-up of the cabinet meeting, and he was told by the prime minister that there were no announcements and that no further meetings were scheduled between then and Monday.

Outgoing Public Works Minister Davie Fulton told a reporter later that all the members of the cabinet were on call, but that none expected to receive any call to another meeting.

Mr. Fulton, new leader of the B.C. Progressive Conservatives, said he would return to B.C. on Tuesday to take up his leadership duties on a full-time basis.

The Prime Minister was expected to spend a quiet and reflective last weekend at the prime ministerial summer home at Harrington Lake, in the Gatineau Hills across the calling it quits Monday.

High-Rise Foe Critical Of 'Autocratic' Council

Bitter high-rise foe Mrs. Shirley Dowell, 3276 Upper Terrace Road, today suggested an "autocratic" Oak Bay council pushed the Victoria University development board around.

She also said the tallest fire truck ladder in Greater Victoria could only reach the eighth storey of a 12-storey high rise apartment building.

Mrs. Dowell, in a written statement, asked: "What happens if you live above the eighth floor?"

She also said high-rise apartment dwellers do not pay direct property taxes yet will be the cause of demands for more fire trucks, larger sewer and water services, better roads and street lighting which homeowners will have to provide through taxes.

FORCED AGREEMENT

Turning to Oak Bay council, the statement claimed:

"In 1961 the council forced on the university development board an agreement to use 40 acres of campus, fronting on Cedar Hill Cross Road and Gordon Head Road, for high-rise buildings."

Mrs. Dowell said this would "create a wall of concrete and glass around three sides of the university campus."

She said the university development board had to give in to Oak Bay's demands because the municipality had virtually veto power over the transfer of Hudson's Bay Company land to the university.

The municipality also insisted on receiving free of charge a total of four acres of road allowance from the campus.

HAD TO ACCEPT

"The (university development) board was compelled by Oak Bay to accept the (high-rise) lease arrangement," the statement said.

"They were very unhappy about this as they had to do this."

shift all the detailed planning of the campus northward."

Mrs. Dowell appealed to Oak Bay and Saanich councillors who have favored high-rise developments in residential areas to admit "they made a mistake and rectify the error before it is too late."

She urged all opponents of high-rise apartments to phone her at EV 6-4683, Mrs. Anne Gray at GR 7-3061 or Mrs. Katharine Cameron at GR 7-1270.

The national academy of sciences has called for an international effort to cope with "uncontrolled population growth" throughout the world.

A report to the public issued by the academy Wednesday declared that "other than the search for lasting peace, no problem is more urgent."

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three exhausted men, missing in Garibaldi Park since Sunday, were brought out by RCAF helicopter Wednesday.

The three, all experienced Vancouver skiers, told of 60-mile-an-hour winds, deep snow, and rationing of slim provisions.

Lloyd Williams, 26, Don Hoover and Heinz Rostek, both 22, said they were skiing out to a railway siding when they were seen from the helicopter and picked up.

"We knew what we were doing," Williams said. "It's the toughest situation I've ever been in, but our main concern was the inconvenience we were causing the searchers and our kin."

The three left Squamish, 40

MOSCOW (UPI)—Five teenagers Russians in Kuibyshev have been sentenced to death for raping schoolgirls, the youth organ Komsomolskaya Pravda said Wednesday. The official publication reported there is "an alarming degree of juvenile delinquency" in the provincial city, 530 miles east-southeast of Moscow, which was Russia's capital in the darkest days of the Second World War.

Socreds Still Feuding

OTTAWA (CP) — The case of the Social Credit six is closed. Or is it?

A caucus of the party's Quebec wing issued a statement here Wednesday saying the six Social Credit MPs who pledged their support to the incoming Liberal government last Friday now have "retracted" their signatures.

"The incident is closed," the statement said.

But in Red Deer, Alta., party leader Robert Thompson came out of a western Social Credit strategy session and said a final decision will be made by a full party caucus before Parliament meets.

When Deputy Leader Real Caouette heard about that in Ottawa he told reporters:

"That's not true. Nothing more will happen after today's caucus."

Meanwhile, Mr. Caouette agreed with Mr. Thompson's other statement from Red Deer on Wednesday saying Social Credit MPs will "lend their constructive support" to any sound Liberal legislative program, including a budget.

MAKE NO DEMANDS

The statement added: "Canada's most urgent immediate need is for Parliament to function effectively without any specific demands or conditions attached."

"We believe it is the responsibility of the new government to carry on the work of Parliament and the administration of the nation as if they had a working majority."

Mr. Thompson said in an interview in Edmonton that reporters are intentionally seeking differences between him and the Quebec Social Credit MPs in an attempt to paint a picture of national disunity in the party.

He also said Mr. Caouette has no ambition to become national party leader, and blamed the press for trying to create a threat to his leadership by calling Mr. Caouette co-leader. Mr. Caouette was the adjutant or deputy leader "but he may have, in a moment of over-exuberance, said he was the co-leader."

UNDERSTANDS QUEBEC

"All the Quebec members are solidly behind me and our party," said Mr. Thompson. "I have more support in Quebec than any one of the other leaders. I understand French-Canadians. I am as at home in Quebec as I am here."

The Quebec MPs who signed the statement of Liberal support a week ago were Gerard Perron (Beaumont), Gilbert Rondeau (Suffield), Raymond Langlois (Megantic), Pierre-Antoine Boutin (Dorchester), Lucien Plourde (Quebec West) and Robert Beaule (Quebec East).

Jobless Total Holds Steady

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada stood at 549,000 in mid-March, barely changed from the previous month, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and labor department said today in a joint statement.

The total was 11,000 lower than the 560,000 unemployed in March last year.

It represented 8.4 per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.7 per cent in March, 1962, and 11.1 per cent in March, 1961. There was no change in the 8.4-per-cent unemployment rate between February and March.

The Fat Must Be Trimmed

THE EXPENDITURES OF A national government cannot be fixed on strictly business principles, since the objective of the state is social, not financial profits. But once the state decides to take money from one citizen and give it to another for social reasons it is bound to see that the money is not wasted. And this, says the Glasco Commission, is precisely what the Canadian state has failed to do.

The latest volume of the commission's huge report carries its inquiries into three major departments of the state—the armed services, the Canadian Broadcasting Commission and northern affairs. In all of them, as in the departments previously investigated, waste and inefficiency are revealed on a disturbing scale.

It should be understood at once that the commission has no partisan motives. It is not criticizing the Diefenbaker government in particular. It is indicting all governments over a long period of years during which loose administration has crept into virtually all departments. Professor Parkinson's famous law seems to have produced something of a native Canadian masterpiece. Expenditure not only has risen to meet income but has passed it by a wide margin, at the cost of perpetual budgetary deficit.

The financial problems of the Pearson government would be simple if it could balance the budget merely by eliminating waste but that is impossible. The budget will be balanced in the end mainly by increased revenues, from a larger national production or from higher taxes, or both. And that will take some time.

Meanwhile, however, the duty of the new government is clear. It must give immediate attention to the Glasco recommendations which do not attempt to suggest government policy but do identify the opportunities for gigantic savings.

All of them will be needed if the government's finances are to be put in order. Even if the budget were already balanced or in surplus these savings would still be important. The taxpayer who supplies all the government's revenues has the right to know that his money is wisely spent.

When he undoubtedly faces higher taxes at three levels of government, in most parts of the nation anyway, he has a special claim for thrifty administration. From the new federal government he will be satisfied with nothing less.

The financial task before the government (apart from all its other bewildering problems) should not be underestimated.

In its latest report, for example, the Glasco Commission strongly criticizes the administration of two highly sensitive departments. The armed services will certainly resist every effort to change their methods. They will produce convincing arguments to prove that they cannot reduce their astounding payroll of 60,000 persons engaged in non-combat activities. Probably they will resist the unification of services common to the Navy, Army and Air Force, now administered by three separate and overlapping organizations.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, rightly determined to maintain its independence from political pressure, will resent any attempt to improve its business methods which the Glasco commission considers wasteful.

If the Pearson government does its duty in all the departments so far investigated it must be prepared to accept much unpopularity from the start. It must confront all the quiet but massive power of a well-entrenched bureaucracy. It must tread on many tender official toes.

These political risks, so long evaded, must now be taken. If the government takes them boldly and cuts the useless fat from the administrative anatomy the public, we think, will support it, since only the public's money is being squandered. The general housecleaning now required will confront Mr. Pearson and his colleagues with a vital test which the smallest taxpayer can understand.

Defeat In the Mines

A RECENT SURVEY IN France shows that only 42 per cent of those polled are happy with General de Gaulle as president. At the beginning of March the percentage was 55. This sudden drop in popularity is ascribed to the president's handling of the serious coal and utility strikes.

His dilemma was obvious. He refused widespread wage increases in the nationalized coal mines because he did not want to start a "wages up—prices up" inflationary spiral. But to hold this line de Gaulle had to battle public opinion as well as strikers.

The recent conclusion of the strike, with the miners getting a 6.5

per cent wage increase this year and a promised 6 per cent for next year was a defeat for de Gaulle and his policy. It constituted more, in fact, than the 11 per cent the miners had originally called for.

Now the public has seen the president defied on his no-strike order, and found that he can be defeated by united and sustained effort. The prospect is that wage demands will become intensified throughout other nationalized industries—transport, gas, electricity. And once that gate is opened, workers in private industry—admittedly better off under present wage scales—may want to follow suit.

President de Gaulle's dilemma remains.

Divorce and Perjury

IN VANCOUVER THE OTHER day a private investigator was sentenced to two years for perjury.

If the courts are to function properly, those who commit this crime must be punished. But attention should be given to the comment of defence counsel who lost the Vancouver case. He says that perjury is committed in nine out of 10 divorce cases.

His statistics should be checked and probably are high. It is nevertheless a fact that time and again responsible people connected with divorce court make the point that under the existing law, marriages are severed on fabricated evidence, with strong indications of collusion.

This is no secret. It is a development that can be expected as long as the grounds for divorce are limited almost entirely to proof of adultery in most Canadian provinces.

Couples whose marriages have failed and whose lives become tragic because of these failures very frequently take the one obvious course open to them to escape. They go through the routine of establishing adultery on the part of one spouse or the other, though unfaithfulness may be no factor whatever in their inability to live together.

In the process evidence is manufactured, untruths are told the court and, in occasional instances, someone is convicted of perjury. The flowering weed is picked. No effort is made to get at the root.

How to Judge a College

NOW IS THE TIME, SAYS AN American newspaper, when anxious parents of anxious high school seniors move into the familiar ritual of college hunting—trying to determine which university is most suitable for and would be most beneficial to their young hopefuls.

This is a procedure of limited application only to Victoria College. Here more than 75 per cent of the student body comes from homes on Vancouver Island, over 50 per cent from Greater Victoria. Moreover, of the remaining group, most are College of Education students from the interior following the old route of former Normal School candidates to Victoria from points other than and around Vancouver.

In time it is reasonable to expect students from more distant towns, as the reputation of the university expands. And the appeal of "... Well, let's see now . . . you go straight down here till you come to a highway commission enquiry, turn left onto a ministerial denial . . . take the right fork at an engineer's revision and then swing left onto a suspicious paving deal . . . you can't miss it . . ."

Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

The Sacred Maggot of Independence

THERE is a growing opinion here that a smooth transition will be the prelude to an easy passage for the minority Liberal government in the first session of the 26th Parliament. The strangest episode of recent days was undoubtedly the affair of the Sacred Six. Despite the subsequent disclaimers and shouts of trickery, this is generally considered a most significant development, highly favorable to the incoming government.

If the Pearson government does its duty in all the departments so far investigated it must be prepared to accept much unpopularity from the start. It must confront all the quiet but massive power of a well-entrenched bureaucracy. It must tread on many tender official toes.

These political risks, so long evaded, must now be taken. If the government takes them boldly and cuts the useless fat from the administrative anatomy the public, we think, will support it, since only the public's money is being squandered. The general housecleaning now required will confront Mr. Pearson and his colleagues with a vital test which the smallest taxpayer can understand.

While the Creditistes have broken ranks before, the circumstances were not comparable. On Nov. 6 of last year Mr. Pearson challenged the Diefenbaker government with an amendment condemning austerity. There was a clear split at that time between Mr. Thompson, who was determined to avoid an election, and Mr. Caouette, who had vowed publicly and often that austerity must go. The outcome was that two Quebec members voted for the Pearson amendment, 13 abstained and the rest followed Mr. Thompson.

But this was not a case of insurgency on the part of the rank and file; the party was simply pulled apart in a tug-of-war between its two quarreling leaders.

But three have not repented and their declaration of support for a Pearson government presumably stands.

What is the condition of the Social Credit party when some members accuse other members of "trickery" and when the national leader suspects "deals"?

Mr. Thompson's angry denunciation ignores two significant assertions in the statement of the six. "This offer is made voluntarily and freely. We expect no favors other than the satisfaction of having done our duty." These are understandable if intended for the eye of the governor-general or for public information; they seem grotesquely out of place in a brief for a caucus.

Even more interesting, however, is the reaction of Mr. Caouette, now at odds with both Mr. Thompson and Dr. Marcoux. On election night, he made no attempt to hide his bitter feelings against the victorious Liberals.

In the face of this latest provocation one might expect him to erupt like Vesuvius. But it is now Mr. Caouette who—while boycotting his own caucus—tries

As Our Readers See It

B.C.'s Double Tax

May I call the attention of your readers to paragraph (a) of subsection 4 of section 4 of the Income Tax Act, 1962, of the province of British Columbia.

This paragraph, stripped of the tax-statute jargon and abstruse cross-references so familiar to all students of tax law, definitely disallows as a deduction from B.C. income tax any part whatever of taxes already paid to a foreign power. Thus, if a taxpayer resident in British Columbia has foreign income which has already suffered a withholding tax in the country of origin he must also pay the province of British Columbia the full rate of provincial income tax on the same income. This means, of course, that as the Dominion taxing authority does permit such a deduction from tax, another set of calculations of tax is required with the necessary schedule in explanation.

There is already a menacing spirit of indignation abroad in the land at the double taxation imposed on the owners (shareholders) of Canadian corporations, and the Dominion government has recognized this at least to the extent of allowing a deduction from the basic tax of 20 per cent of such dividends.

Furthermore, the Dominion government, through its reciprocal tax agreements with most of those countries whose economic situation attracts investment by Canadians, recognizes the freedom of the investor to seek a fair return on his judgment wherever and however he so proposes. If he has already suffered tax by the authority of such country his Canadian tax is thereby proportionately reduced.

Not so British Columbia!

Briefly, if your financial interests are world-wide, B.C. by this enactment encourages you to remove yourself (and of course your money) out of this province.

Pension at 65

A respectable citizen contributes for a lifetime as a taxpayer in his community and helps build his city to its present modern proportions. Reaching age 65 a kindly employer then retires the man without pension, thanks him for his years of service and as bonus presents him with an armchair to sit back in.

Now why should this man have to bow and smile and assume that status of genteel poverty for five years until he finally becomes eligible for old age pension at age 70, when a man is considered to have one foot in the grave, and lived his allotted span of three-score years and ten?

It is the primary duty of any government today to immediately sanction the payment of the present contributory old age pension to commence at age 65, that is normally the end of most men's working days. This would mean many more jobs for the thousands of young people leaving schools each year that become available on the labor market.

A. L. STEVENSON,
2765 Belmont Avenue.

Concord Impossible

What happened to the supersonic aircraft that France and Britain were going to develop jointly—the "Concorde"?

It is too bad that this world-wide looting system of society makes the usual yearning for real concord impossible today.

The conflict over places to dispose the spoils extracted from the workers of the world has helped lead to the development of the massive arms production, has caused the nearly countless small wars and the current dispute between the two eastern giants, Russia and China.

The ordinary people of the earth should wake up and take the necessary political action to make the means of production the common property of society.

D. HOLLIDAY,
1355 Lang St.

Against High-Rise

I would like to add my protest against the erection of high-rise apartment buildings in Saanich.

These unsightly monuments to greed should not be allowed to desecrate the landscape; land is not so high-priced or scarce as to warrant any such plan.

Our councillors should realize that to increase municipal income is not their only function: it is also their duty to preserve our natural advantages so that all may enjoy them.

A. PERCY RAYMENT,
4011 Blenkinsop Rd.

VIENNA:

Nationalism Revives

By JOSEPH ALSOP

GEN. de Gaulle is quoted by those closest to him as arguing that the heavy cost of the French nuclear striking force is a positive benefit to France. The argument is certainly unexpected. It is well to bear in mind because of the continuous recurrence of nonsensical reports of a French loss of stomach for an independent nuclear effort. And if you think about it, this unexpected argument is also intensely Gaullist.

The point is that the nation is the sacred, dominating conception in de Gaulle's political thought. The nation, so he believes, tends to lose its national identity when it shirks the essential effort of national self-defence. And a defence effort great enough to cause a certain strain can beneficially intensify the sense of nationhood.

As always with this strange great man, there is a kernel of truth in his argument. Of course, it remains to be seen whether the French people will agree with de Gaulle that the pain is downright bracing and beneficial when the effort required to create a French "force de frappe" becomes really painful—as it must soon become. At any rate, as long as de Gaulle is in power, no expense will be spared.

Meanwhile, it is necessary to face the hard fact that de Gaulle is almost certainly a portent of the European future. The renewal of pride and independence which de Gaulle symbolizes in France today must also be expected to occur in the other European nations as time goes on. In truth, de Gaulle both demands and signifies the end of the era of governness America.

The real question is not whether de Gaulle is a portent, but how much of a portent he is. It is entirely possible, for instance, that de Gaulle's assertion of self-centered, rather domineering French nationalism will eventually be echoed in France's neighbor nations.

Nationalism, it must be remembered, is in the nature of an infectious disease. No one in the Gaullist circle in France seems to be thinking about this aspect of the matter. But the renewal of French nationalism can very easily reawaken German nationalism and Italian nationalism and so on and on.

If this is to be the European future, it will be a dark future, and not just for Europeans. Yet one can already see the first tiny symptoms in such things as the German attitude to the French "force de frappe."

All the scores of German leaders and officials this reporter saw in Bonn were eager for the opening of a Kennedy-de Gaulle dialogue. But when it was pointed out that the essential preliminary was Franco-American nuclear co-operation, every German leader and official was downright horrified. The Germans cherish their reconciliation with the French, but they do not want the French preferred to them, in the nuclear field or any other field.

Hardest Problem

As Walter Lippmann has correctly pointed out, this hardest problem of the Western Alliance cannot be solved by gimmicks designed to give the European the sense of nuclear participation without the reality.

But it is not safe, either, to go on talking academically about "non-proliferation" of deterrents and the need for only one hand on the trigger when de Gaulle is a portent and proliferation is actually occurring in France.

If we do not choose to imitate the Athenians, who simply sent their fleet against recalcitrant allies, there is in fact only one solution of the West's hardest problem. The solution, publicly advocated the other day by Jean Monnet, is to create a truly European deterrent with American support.

As originally proposed by the Kennedy policy-makers, the so-called multilateral deterrent was a mere gimmick. The command arrangements gave the United States a negative control by veto, as well as providing so many other national vetoes that the multilateral deterrent was forever insured.

But if the President accepts the German suggestion of control by a majority of the participating nations, this multilateral force will become the embryo of a truly European deterrent.

It may not be the best way to do the job, but it is the best way that has been proposed so far. And as the President was the first to launch the scheme of a multilateral force, he will also suffer gravely if his idea does not succeed.

Gerald Waring ... REPORTING

OTTAWA — Parliaments have come so thick and gone so fast in the last six years that when this new 26th Parliament meets next month, I shall have reported more than a third of all the Parliaments that have sat in this country in the 96 years since Confederation.

To be exact, 36.4 per cent. For it was during the life of the 18th Parliament that the editors of the Montreal Standard decided I might be of some value as a parliamentary correspondent. I like to think it was not an act of desperation on their part—but be that as it may, their decision got me into the Commons press gallery in time for the constitutional crisis of 1944.

And looking back over my eight Parliaments, in light of the election outcome last week and the prospects for the 26th Parliament, I feel well satisfied with the people's verdict on April 8. The new prime minister has, for all practical purposes, a tight majority in the House. And in my experience the best Parliament — producing the best government, with a strong opposition maintaining vigilant watch over the administration for the protection of the public interest — was the 19th Parliament elected in 1945. The Liberals squeaked back into office that year with a majority of three that grew to 11 with the adherence of Independents and with by-election gains.

But it is not merely on the happy augury of parallel political circumstances that I base my satisfaction with the election's outcome. Liberal partisans naturally would like Lester Pearson to have won a substantial majority — not necessarily matching John Diefen-

You Can't Escape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I believe it was Aristotle who said that American tourists go abroad mainly to look at other American tourists. Of maybe it was Cassius Clay.

At any rate, this jibe at our provincialism has a certain amount of validity. Many American tourists do fail to take full advantage of the cultural opportunities in the lands they visit.

But, having just returned from a trip to Venezuela, I am prepared to testify that there is another side to the coin. "Getting away from it all" is not as simple as it looks in the travel folders.

The first Venezuelan I met was a hotel barber who told me that anti-American sentiment was so strong he was afraid to drive around in his Cadillac. It turned out he was born in New York.

I might never have experienced any of the "true flavor" of the country had I not been fortunate enough to have as one of my travelling companions a veteran globetrotter named Myron Glaser.

Glaser, who writes a travel column for the Washington Daily News, steered me to the environs of Caracas where we discovered an original native art form. It was an ancient stone wall covered with fragmentary inscriptions and abstract designs.

At first, we thought it might be the handiwork of Indian aborigines who once inhabited the area. But a local art critic, who doubles as a taxi driver, told us its origin was political rather than cultural. Here is how the mural was created:

A pro-Communist passed by with paint brush and, noting that the wall was barren of slogans, painted "Yankee go home" upon the stones.

Then an anti-Communist came by, smeared fresh paint over the epithet and scrawled "Communism stinks." He was followed by a nationalist sign-painter, and so it went until the wall had become a masterpiece of impressionistic art.

In my opinion, this technique is far superior to the so-called "donkey tail" school of painting and I hope it catches on in other parts of the world.

A few days later, Glaser and I organized a small expedition in the town of Macuto, our aim being to inspect the dwellings of the native Andeans who live on the mountainside.

Stumbling over rocks and rills, and an occasional temple hill, we made our way from ridge to ridge, pressing ever onward and upward. But we could find no sign of habitation.

Finally, we came to a pathway and in the distance heard the tinkling of a bell. Striking out in that direction, we broke through to a clearing and were almost run down by an ice cream wagon.

It was a triumphant moment and Glaser expressed it well.

"The sun never sets on a 'good humor' man," he said.

VIENNA (Reuters) — Erich Rajakovich, alleged aide of executed Nazi mass murderer Adolf Eichmann, was arrested here Wednesday on charges of suspected complicity in murder.

Rajakovich reported voluntarily to court authorities this morning after disappearing last Thursday when he arrived in Munich from Switzerland.

Traffic Victim Unable To Recover From Shock

Victim of a New Year's Day traffic accident had so many fractures he was "put into a state of shock from which he never really recovered," an Assize Court jury was told Wednesday.

Witness Dr. Ross McNeely, Royal Jubilee Hospital pathologist, testified at the trial of Hendrick Wittenveen, 2721 Shelbourne, who is charged with criminal negligence, hit-and-run, and impaired driving in connection with the death of Arthur Vincent Seear, 79, of 204 Meadow.

The pedestrian was in collision with a car at about 5 p.m., Jan. 1, and died in Veterans' Hospital Jan. 4.

Among the fractures he suffered were the left leg, pelvis and ribs, Dr. McNeely said.

LARGE HEMORRHAGE

He attributed death to the effects of multiple fractures and a rather large hemorrhage in the abdominal wall.

"Keeping in mind these fractures and his age, he was put into a state of shock from which he never really recovered," the witness said.

Earlier, Mrs. Margaret Elizabeth Simonson, 2824 Shelbourne, told the court—presided over by Mr. Justice David Verchere—how she and her husband saw a car weaving along Richmond and strike the pedestrian.

"She said her husband drove north on Richmond and came up behind another auto. 'The first thing I noticed was that the car jerked suddenly around a parked car,'" Mrs. Simonson said.

CAR WANDERED

"The car wandered over to the curb and then back into its lane and across the white line and then jerk back into the lane again."

"The light was red at Richmond and Oak Bay. When it turned green the car ahead of us stalled."

"He then got the car going. He started toward the right then back onto Richmond and went up over the curb," the witness related.

She described further weaving into the path of oncoming traffic and near collision on a traffic island at Fort.

"I noticed a pedestrian in the crosswalk at Bay Street going from west to east," Mrs. Simonson said.

"The man crossing looked around and saw the car. He hurried, tried to run but the car hit him about three or four steps before he got to the curb."

"I saw his body flying through the air in front of the car and to the right."

She said the car was a light blue Pontiac 1953, with licence 50-138.

Both cars had been going about 20 miles an hour before the collision, Mrs. Simonson said.

City police Cons. Richard

Ward said he found a car bearing this number in a garage at the rear of 2721 Shelbourne shortly after he attended at Bay and Richmond.

It had beaded rain drops on part of its front chrome, and other parts appeared to have been wiped. Cons. Ward said, in one place on the bumper there was a partial imprint of woven material in the dust film.

COLUMBIA ACTION SOON FORECAST BY WILLISTON

SEATTLE (CP) — British Columbia Lands and Forests Minister Williston said Wednesday he believes the new Liberal government, once it takes office, will move toward ratification of the Columbia River power development treaty "at an early date."

Addressing the Northwest Power Association, the minister said every effort has been made by B.C. authorities "to begin construction the minute the document becomes a document of action."

The province, he said, has already spent $8,000,000 toward construction of the three dams called for in the multi-million-dollar power development plan.

And he gave assurance that B.C. is committed to spend all the money it will receive in the exchange agreement toward the river's development.

'Not Just Japanese Guilty of Poaching'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada knows that Japanese and Russian fleets are poaching halibut in the eastern Bering Sea, an official said today.

But it is impossible to prove it, said R. T. Hager, of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission.

"It's not just the Japanese who are guilty. The Soviets have been taking millions of pounds of fish out of the area."

Mr. Hager said the situation will get worse unless the existing treaty between Canada, the

Youth Crashes 'The Wall' Amid Fusillade of Bullets

BERLIN (AP) — An East German youth who smashed through the Berlin wall in an East German army armored car Wednesday night was reported in satisfactory condition despite a bullet wound in his chest.

A doctor said if everything goes well, he will be out of the hospital in three weeks.

Wolfgang Engels suffered wounds in his chest and hand and multiple cuts and abrasions.

Engels, 19, took the Soviet-made armored car out of the East German army garage where he worked as a civilian mechanic.

Shortly before 8 p.m., he careened down the east side of Eiserstrasse toward the wall, shouting, "I am going over . . . who wants to go with me?"

Communist border guards fired their sub-machine-guns as the nine-ton vehicle plowed into the first concrete barrier. The impact sprung the rear armor-plated doors and two bullets hit Engels.

The car got stuck in the second wall, which forms the border with West Berlin.

Unable to crawl through the hole because the car was blocking it, the wounded youth climbed atop the seven-foot wall, shouting for help.

As the East Berlin guards kept firing, the youth got tangled in the barbed wire atop the wall, then pitched forward and hit the sidewalk in the West Berlin district of Neukolln, in the American sector.

The East Germans put up a water cannon barrage to keep West Berlin police and reporters from approaching the hole in the wall.

A lone West Berlin policeman, on patrol near the scene, fired several shots into the East sector in an attempt to give the youth cover. The officer was slightly injured by concrete fragments splintered off the wall by the East German bullets.

Angry West Berliners were held back from the wall by steel-helmeted West Berlin police, armed with rifles. Many shouted "pigs" and "murderers" as the East German guards pulled the armored car out of the debris.

NEW YORK—Marlon Brando bought me lunch and gave me a tremendously provocative 2½-hour interview during which he dropped a bombshell—he's going to get out of the movie-actor racket.

Over his eggs and my chef's salad, I inquired about the veracity of such rumors.

"I think it's coming to a change," he nodded. "Whether I'll become a director, or whether I'll change my profession and alter my interests, is a question of time and not fact."

I read this back to him from my nickel notebook and said to him, "That says 'yes,' doesn't it?"

"The fact is, I will quit acting, I don't know when," he nodded again.

"And get out of the picture business?"

"I think it's conceivable," he answered.

On a taped interview for a David Susskind TV show, I'm told he was more forthright and said: "I'm getting out of this dodge."

Brando—who's conscientiously giving interviews simultaneously with release of his picture, "The Ugly American"—fiercely attacked Time magazine and other publications during our talk.

"I'm inviting disaster by doing this," he admitted.

"But I have children to bring up in the world and their mothers to protect from scandal and embarrassment, and I'm going to do that to the best of my hopeless ability," he said.

Then he said, "Now I'll interview you..."

And he did—but that's a couple more columns.

A studio spokesman said, "I don't know whether we'll be able to show these scenes in America. Laurence Harvey said, 'I'm glad I'm an actor. This was worth waiting for.'

Revolt Against Rock 'n' Roll

ders with many artists since then. Who, I asked, are his favorite singers?

"Well," said Bobby, "I like Elvis Presley, Connie Francis, and Conway Twitty, too. Also Johnny Mathis, Sinatra! I like him in a way, but I think most of his fans like to remember an earlier era. That's his secret."

When Bobby talks about singing, even senior record executives listen. The young Port Arthur, Ont., singer was last year listed by Billboard as the only young "pop-singer with international status while living in Canada."

(Paul Anka, with whom Bobby is frequently compared, does not live in Canada. Therefore, the American magazine wasn't including him in that assessment.)

Too Soon?

I talked with Bobby this week hours before he was due to fly to Nashville, Tenn., for another recording session. Was he sorry, I wondered, that he decided upon a singing career after finishing Grade 12?

"No, sir," declared Bobby.

"I intend to go back to school eventually, and possibly even university. But right now I'm going to give the singing all the effort I can. We may even have a new album in June."

The young singer feels strongly about a new trend which he helped to start. "I've always felt that people underestimate the musical tastes of teenagers," he said. "They like more than rock 'n' roll."

At this point Bobby sang a few bars of his latest recording, Gypsy Heart, for my benefit and any long distance operators who might be listening. "See what I mean?" he said. "It's a rock-a-balla sound."

Rock-a-balla? "That's using a strong beat to back up a song with good melodic lines and good lyrics," explained Bobby. "The days are gone when they could throw in any old nonsense lyrics."

Summer Jobs

A reminder to all those who are thinking about summer jobs. Have you started looking about your neighborhood for one of those scarce jobs?

Check Early

"Teenagers are going to find it even more difficult to find summer employment this year," an employment agency executive said this week. "And those who wait until June to start looking are liable to be disappointed."

His advice: Check with large companies in the home area, even though they may not be advertising yet for summer help. You may beat the others to the punch that way.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Then ask Andy. Andy, the boy who answers questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer, will receive a thousand dollars a month. The youngster who takes the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and the second question

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Rickey Vreeland, 13, Wichita, Kan., for his question:

What Is a Wombat?

He is a chubby fellow, anywhere from three to four feet long. He walks close to the ground on four stubby legs. Though short, his legs are very strong and sturdy. His front feet end in long curved claws which are used for digging burrows in the hard ground. The common wombat has coarse, dark hair, and his shaggy coat is sometimes used as a doormat.

The wombat has a rabbit-type face with a pair of sleepy eyes and two mousey ears. From a distance, you might mistake him for a partly-grown bear. If you saw him digging his burrow, he would remind you of a badger. But he is unrelated to the bear and the badger. The wombat and his several cousins belong in the family Phascolomysidae, meaning the pouched mouse-type animals.

This furry fellow is a marsupial, which means he spent his babyhood pocketed in a pouch built into his mother's coat. Along with most of the world's marsupials, we find him inhabiting the large island of Australia and some of the smaller islands which surround it. But we are not likely to find him at all unless we hunt outdoors at night.

When the sun shines, the wombat is sound asleep. His home is a burrow, maybe 15 feet or maybe 100 feet long—and he dug it all with his own bare hands. At the end of his tunnel is a bedroom with a bed of crumpled dry leaves which he has gathered and carted down stairs to make himself comfortable. He is a solitary fellow, and no one shares his cozy burrow. Mrs. Wombat, however, shares her home with junior, but only until he is big enough to face the world alone and build his own burrow.

After the sun sets, the wombat wakes up and gets ready to forage. He comes out to feed on roots and grasses. He is very fond of chewing on stalks of hay, and sometimes he eats the inner bark of a tree trunk. This diet calls for strong teeth, and the wombat has them. His teeth, like those of the rodent, continue to grow throughout his life.

A wombat may live to be 30 years old, and in captivity he makes a splendid pet. He is smart and repays kindness with affection. He is not given to tantrums, and when annoyed, the gentle creature merely utters a few low, husky growls. He can, however, be recommended only as a suitable pet for a night watchman—for the wombat always sleeps through the day.

* * *

Andy sends a 14-inch globe to Larry Long, age 12, of Quincy, Ill., for his question:

When is the sun closest to the earth?

The orbit of the earth is an ellipse, or oval, with two focal points. The sun is at one of these foci, which means that its distance varies as the earth swings around its yearly orbit. The mean or average between us and the sun is 92,900,000 miles—or thereabouts. But the distance varies by some three million miles.

Strange to say, the earth is nearest to the sun when we are in the northern hemisphere mid-winter. This is in early January when we are about one and a half million miles closer to the sun than we are in April and October. In July, we are three million miles farther from the sun than we are in chilly January.

'Dramatic' Results From Fluoridation

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba health department today reported "dramatic" reductions in children's tooth decay in Brandon where the water supply has been fluoridated since 1955.

Percentage of children in the 6-8 age group without caries in permanent teeth rose from 32 per cent in 1955 to 74 per cent in 1962.

The findings were contained in the second government report on the dental effects of fluoridation in the Manitoba city. The first was issued in 1960.

Both were based on regular surveys of most children in the six to 14 bracket.

R. Connor, provincial director of dental services, says there was "a downward trend in caries prevalence" in all age groups reported on.

Trade Unionist Scores Apprenticeship Policy

The provincial government seeks power to qualify tradesmen while overlooking credentials of public highway contractors, a Victoria Labor Council delegate charged Wednesday.

The comparison was made by Fred Bevis, electricians union, in discussion on amendments to the Apprenticeship and Tradesmen's Qualification Act which gives certain powers to the government, some of which have been handled by unions.

Mr. Bevis termed the legislation unnecessary and opposed it being "rammed" down tradesmen's throats.

It passed the legislature March 26.

COMPARISON

One provision gives the government power of examination and certification of proficiency in a trade. Mr. Bevis compared the situation with the recent legislative inquiry on charges of graft in awarding highways contracts.

Referring to certain contractors, Mr. Bevis said "there is no suggestion of a test of ability, competency, or even honesty placed upon them."

A special committee appointed by council examined the new act and reported a desire to meet with Labor Minister Leslie Peterson for clarification of several points.

Appointment of examining boards, formerly the province of the cabinet, is now apparent.

Mr. Driscoll pointed to a section requiring a union to disclose racial origin of its officers. He said this was an "implication of racial discrimination and something we should take a very close look at."

NO WARD HEELERS'

"We don't want some political ward heelers to set examinations on the competency of our tradesmen," said committee member John Driscoll, who reported to council.

A number of sections would "merit closer examination," Mr. Driscoll said. The committee seeks clarification on the following points:

1. In each designated trade, the union be authorized to set up and administer the examination, and proficiency certificates be issued on union recommendation.

2. No permits should be issued by the labor minister for a person to work at a trade without passing an examination.

INCLUDE ALL

3. All of the province should be designated in a particular trade, not part of it, and all workers in the trade should be included whether working for a private employer or a Crown corporation.

4. All new entries to a trade should be apprentices.

5. Under no circumstances should a system of grading journeymen be recognized.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Even in the antiseptic Victoria College cafeteria, loaded with specimens of muscle and grit, Dr. Peter Mullins stood out. Here was the cream of B.C.'s track and field coaching fraternity, inhaling a little nourishment before returning to the Canadian Legion clinic to inhale a little more knowledge.

Dr. Mullins is talk in the coaching racket, talk in track and basketball, talk in degrees. And just plain talk. From his white gym shoes to his close-cropped black hairdo, lightly speckled with grey, he languishes over six feet four inches.

How was the clinic going? "Fine. Excellent. People here from all over B.C., the Charlottes, the Kootenays, the Far North. Soaking it up."

He didn't say what they were, soaking up, but it wasn't Col. McGugan's best. A staff of seven, headed by Geoffrey Dyson and including the doctor, are spelling out a curriculum of technical track talk. The idea is that the "students" will dash off to their respective boughs and instruct virile Canadian youth. Ultimately, it is hoped, Canada will rise boldly on international track horizons and all that.

With rare exceptions Canadian runners and jumpers have stood out in international competition like a bride's first cake—flat and tasteless. Percy Williams knocked off the world's best a few decades ago but until Harry Jerome, Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers began to burn holes in the wind the gap was immense.

How would the doctor diagnose the malaise? "Too few good coaches, too little competition, a different approach to sport by Canadian youth," he said candidly.

Freewheeling now...

"There are good coaches in this country but not enough of them. Do you realize that the first batch of physical education graduates didn't appear at University of B.C. until 1949?"

Canadians Tend To Be Parochial

There are hundreds of good, potentially good that is, runners in Canada but the competition and emphasis haven't been here. My kids at UBC are writing exams now. I ask them to train? In the U.S. the two big track months of the year are April and May.

And then there's the glamor of other sports. Ask a boy who his idol is and he'll say 'Gordie Howe' or 'Jackie Parker.' His thinking is geared to being in the National Hockey League. In Russia the epitome of success for a boy is to play on Russia's national hockey team against international competition. Being the best within his own country isn't important to a European. To North Americans it's altogether different."

He didn't use the expression "parochial" but parochial is the expression that fits.

Basis for Scholarships Is 'Need'

There has been a feeling that Canada would fare better on world playing fields if Canadians weren't so priggish about things like university scholarships for healthy athletes. At this level they could get superior training while preserving their amateur purity.

The good doctor fielded this one carefully and on the first bounce.

"I go along with that theory," he said, "with qualifications. If a boy is academically eligible but can't pay tuition fees, he's entitled to a university education. But no money should change hands. If, on the other hand, a boy with similar athletic promise comes from a rich home, no college should pick up the tab. Universities shouldn't recruit without distinguishing between the two. And the guideline should be one of need. Nothing else."

The Boy Who Wanted to Shake Hands

Need and desire and try are words which apply to Doc Mullins. He tried a little track and basketball at Sydney, Australia. A little?

"Well, I managed to finish sixth in the decathlon at the 1948 Olympics."

Then he wrote to U.S. colleges, heard from Washington State and crossed the Pacific bathtub to enrol—on a scholarship, naturally. At Pullman, he graduated with a bachelor's and master's degree in phys ed, later added his doctorate in education.

About that time Abe Saperstein had plans to expose his Harlem Globetrotters to the Aussies. As a patsy team he formed the Boston Whirlwinds. Mullins itched to "go back home" even for a visit, so there he was in a Whirlwind uniform, alongside people like Bill Spivey, six-seven and everybody's All-American.

Saperstein—"there's a sharp businessman"—plugged the return of the prodigal son for all it was worth. Mullins was introduced with a fanfare, always scored the first basket—"by design"—to stir up the crowds.

Autograph collectors and other emotional Aussies shook his hand, clapped him across the shoulder blades and generally hailed him.

One night after a game, a scrawny lad came up and said: "Mr. Mullins, I've always wanted to meet you."

They shook hands and Mullins said: "Thank you, son. What's your name?"

John Landy" was the reply.

Canada, U.S. Nix Hornung, Karras

By WILL GRIMESLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Professional football on both sides of the border has slammed its doors on two suspended National Football League stars and rallied behind NHL commissioner Pete Rozelle in his smashing blow at gambling influences.

A penitent Paul Hornung and an outraged Alex Karras were apparently left with no recourse except possible future forgiveness of the league—not earlier than 1964.

The rival American League and the Canadian League both confirmed they had no place for the two players accused of waging on games.

"Under no circumstances will they be permitted to play in the American Football League until after suspensions are lifted," said AFL commissioner Joe Foss.

Sydney Halter, commissioner of the Canadian League, said: "I would refuse to register any contract submitted by a CFL club with a player suspended by an American League for betting on games."

Hornung, halfback and perennial scoring leader of the champion Green Bay Packers, and Karras, 250-pound tackle for Detroit Lions, drew indefinite suspensions Wednesday.

Five other Detroit players were fined and the Detroit club was penalized $4,000.

Hornung and Karras were accused of making $30 to $200 bets over a period of years. The commissioner said there was no evidence of any so-called "fixes." That is, they weren't found to have bet against their own club, said in formation to gamblers or shave points.

The other five players, each fined $2,000 for betting $50 apiece on Green Bay to beat the New York Giants in the 1962 championship play-off game, were: John Gordy, guard; Gary Lowe, defensive end; Mike Edwards, end; Howard Edwards, end; and Edward Edwards, end.

The other five players, each fined $2,000 for betting $50 apiece on Green Bay to beat the New York Giants in the 1962 championship play-off game, were: John Gordy, guard; Gary Lowe, defensive end; Mike Edwards, end; Howard Edwards, end; and Edward Edwards, end.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, firm action

The Detroit team was fined for failing to take proper action on undesirable associations reported by police.

Hornung, 27, said: "I did wrong. I should be penalized. I just have to stay with it."

He said he did not plan an appeal from the suspension. He indicated he would work toward a review of his case and ultimate reinstatement—an act which isn't possible, Rozelle said, before 1964.

The blond, rugged former

Notre Dame star, leading scorer in the NFL in 1959, 1960

and 1961, and Most Valuable Player in 1961, said all his bets were of the sociable variety.

"They were made with friends, strictly sporting," he said. "I always gave 100 per cent of every game I played in."

He said he probably made eight or nine bets, $100 and $200 each.

Green Bay Ace Picked Up $1,500

Rozelle said Hornung's betting habits stemmed from his acquaintance with a West Coast businessman, whom Hornung met in 1956 in San Francisco. In vestigation showed Hornung placed several bets through this friend, the commissioner added, saying in one year the triple threat halfback made $1,500.

Hornung said his information to the unnamed friend was only casual. "It was just what anybody would ask," the Packer star said. "Like: 'How do the Packers look?'"

Karras' reaction to the suspension followed an entirely different pattern.

"It comes as a shock to me," said the big lineman, also 27, a one-time All-America at Iowa.

"I haven't done anything I am ashamed of and I am not guilty of anything."

He said he had hired an attorney and planned to fight the legal action. However, he said

"We all were sitting around in Miami watching the Green

Bay-Giants championship game on TV," he related. "In the group of us, we decided to get up a bet on the game. Everyone just did it without thinking. Our regular season was over. This was the only time I ever bet on a football game."

'He Always Gave Me 100 Per Cent'

Among the NFL owners, the only discordant note on Rozelle's action was voiced by William Clay Ford, president of the Lions.

He said the Lions would comply fully with the commissioner's order but added: "Compliance does not mean that we agree with the nature or extent of the penalties imposed."

Vince Lombardi, Green Bay

coach and general manager, said: "I thought a great deal of Paul. He always gave me 100 per cent in football. While there is no evidence of criminal intent, that of shaving points and so forth, the caliber of play was not affected."

"However, there was a definite violation of the player contract and constitution and by-laws of this league in regard to gambling which is punishable by suspension. The commissioner had no other alternative because, if allowed to continue, it could lead to more serious consequences."

Rozelle, 37, indicated his office had no further evidence of irregularities.

This is the first scandal to hit the NFL since the 1946 championship game between New York Giants and Chicago Bears.

Merle Hapes, a Giant halfback, was suspended for not reporting a conversation with a gambler under investigation for game-fixing. Later, Frank Fileck, the Giants' quarterback, also was suspended.

Both were restored to good standing later by commissioner

Bert Bell but not before

Fileck had played several years in the Canadian League.

Canucks Win Squeaker; Seals Blank Buckaroos

In the north, Vancouver and Seattle are fighting their regular season battles all over again, and in the south Portland Buckaroos are having trouble with San Francisco Seals in Western Hockey League playoff action.

At Vancouver Wednesday night the Canucks, who sawed with Totems in and out of the Northern Division lead all season, won 3-2 before 4,844 fans.

The win gave them a 3-2 edge in games. They go at it again in Seattle Friday in what could be the final game of the best-of-seven playoff.

At San Francisco the Seals blanked Portland 3-0 in a rough game before 6,226 fans that left the Southern Division series tied at three games apiece. The deciding game will be played Tuesday at Portland.

In Vancouver, forward Bob McCusker got the winner for Canucks at 8:18 of the third period as a clearing puck deflected in off the skate of Seals defenceman Don Ward.

For 10 years Esquimalt Council has sent the same two representatives to Union of B.C. Municipalities conventions but Wednesday night a row erupted over who should go this year.

Coun. D. H. Nelson suggested that "in order to ensure continuity" some of the younger men on council should attend union meetings.

Usually the council is represented by Reeve A. C. Wurtele and Coun. James Bryant, although last year for the first time, they were accompanied by Councillor E. L. De Costa, a comparative newcomer on council.

The municipality is entitled to send five representatives to the convention which is being held in September this year at Dawson Creek.

Coun. Walter Lock said it is enough if only two persons attend. Coun. G. K. Sammon also questioned if it is worth sending.

Ross Honored By Borough

TAIN, Scotland (CP) — Col. Frank Mackenzie Ross, former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, Wednesday received the freedom of this northeast Highland borough where he spent part of his youth.

The hour-long ceremony in the royal borough's town hall was colored by a pipe band and the flash of formal kilts.

Ross, 72, was born in Glasgow and later attended the Tain Royal Academy. After graduating he joined the staff of a bank here.

He returned from Canada last February to be present at the academy's 150th anniversary celebrations.

Ross was presented with a burgess ticket and casket by the provost of the borough. The ticket bears a resolution by the borough council giving the reasons for the freedom.

More than 300 people attended the ceremony, including Dr. J. V. Fisher, agent-general for British Columbia in London. Mrs. Ross, chancellor of the University of British Columbia, was also present.

Tain, the oldest royal borough in Scotland, received its charter in 1066. It stands on the south bank of the Dornoch Firth.

HUGE FUND INVITING TO CANADIANS

U.S. Cancer Research 'Threat'

An "explosion" of United States cancer research facilities over the next two years threatens to steal the core of Canada's cancer researchers.

The warning was made Wednesday.

He said the injection of $1,250,000 by the United States government into research facilities would make Canada prime for raiding of research facilities.

The supply of highly qualified men and women to research cancer cannot meet the demand established by such an infusion of funds, he said.

"We are in real danger of having the centre drop out of Canadian research facilities," through the drawing power of American salaries, equipment and laboratories. It is a "very real fear" among university and medical researchers, Dr. McCreary said.

The combat the threat, the government of Canada must provide more research funds, he said.

Voluntary funds such as the cancer campaign "are doing a wonderful job," but they "cannot possibly raise all the funds for the job," the dean said.

Canada's per capita aid to cancer research on the basis of gross national product ranks behind Britain, Sweden and the United States, he pointed out, even though there are five federal government aid-granting agencies for research purposes.

They split $9,000,000 for distribution to Canadian universities and hospitals, Dean McCreary said.

There is virtually no provincial government aid to cancer research, he said.

He said the hope of the future in cancer research and control lies in chemo-therapy, field in which British Columbia is among the most advanced in the world.

This is an area in which chemical agents are used to affect the growth of cancerous cells in the body.

With such excellent basic science, and advanced treatment facilities as in the British Columbia Cancer Institute, there remains only the task of bridging the gap between them by means of a university hospital, Dean McCreary said.

Local headquarters of the campaign is 530 Broughton, where donations may be sent.

LEMON HART RUMS

Bananas are not native to Canada... and neither are rums. Lemon Hart, for example, is produced under the most wonderful conditions in The Caribbean. But for Lemon Hart, even that is not enough: it's shipped to London where it rests quietly in underground vaults where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two year in out. Then, meticulously blended and bottled it's finally shipped to Canada... smooth, mellow, delicious... a perfect product of that small area of the world that is famous for distinguished rum.

ITALY WORKERS PROTEST MDs WALKOUT

ROME (UPI)—Workers battled police at the southern Italian city of Taranto today for the second day as labor protested the strike by Italy's 83,000 doctors against the government-sponsored health insurance program.

The doctors have protested against the red tape and small fees paid under the health plans. Two days ago they cancelled all arrangements with the companies, hiked their fees and left it up to the patients to pay.

Demonstrators today barricaded a main street with cars and rowboats hauled up from the port of the city in Italy's heel.

Police, pelted with stones by the workers, threw tear gas bombs into the crowds.

Road Probers Working on Verdict

By FRANK RUTTER

Thirteen MLAs shut themselves up in a courtroom Wednesday afternoon to start deliberating their verdict in the highway graft inquiry.

The public part of the six-week inquiry ended at 3:30 p.m. when counsel Lloyd G. McKenzie delivered a "charge" to the MLAs who, he said, must act like judges.

He warned them to consider only the evidence they heard during the 36 days of public hearings which began March 6.

They will decide if there was any corruption or wrongdoing by Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi and his officials during Project 819, a 12.8-mile section of the Trans Canada Highway near Revelstoke.

Their decision, to be delivered to the cabinet, could come anytime.

SECRET DELIBERATIONS

All their deliberations will be secret.

Mr. McKenzie said he was "available" to give them any opinion they want on the evidence.

"But remember, you don't take my opinion—you form your own opinion."

He warned the 13 politicians—eight Socreds, four New Democrats and one Liberal—that they had to behave in a judicial fashion.

"Political functions and judicial functions do not mix."

"They are fire and water."

"I do not mean that a person can't be a first-class politician and a first-class judge...."

"What I mean is you can't combine the two attitudes at the same time."

Mr. McKenzie said that unfortunately the rules of procedure for such an inquiry were "obscure." However, he quoted extensively from a magazine article called "Let's Stop the Legal Smear" which warned against use of hearsay evidence in special inquiries.

It had been a struggle, but the inquiry had to a remarkable degree adhered to some ground rules.

"I ask you to base your decision on the evidence," Mr. of project 819.

McKenzie said. "You have to decide whether there was any impropriety."

Witnesses had made sworn statements and the MLAs were judges of the facts.

"I beseech you gentlemen when you are exercising that function, to have regard only to what you have heard in this courtroom."

The inquiry, he said, was a "never-never land" somewhere between a civil case which was based upon a balance of probabilities, and a criminal case, in which proof was required beyond reasonable doubt.

He suggested the MLAs should lean toward proof beyond doubt.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL

Much of the evidence had been circumstantial, he added, such as the allegation that a contractor agreed to pay $350 a month to the organist in Mr. Gagliardi's Kamloops church.

Some was definitely proved, such as the alteration of

"If this was the kind of favor

they allowed them, then let God bless them for the prudence they showed," Mr. Branca said.

Mr. Branca conceded that a highway department employee may well have been involved with companies doing work on government contracts, but it did not concern the inquiry.

The employee, Vincent L. Gresty, had flatly told Mr. Gagliardi that he was not involved at the time.

If he deceived the minister it was immaterial, Mr. Branca said.

The accuser of graft was Dick Holzworth, a Montana contractor who took over Project 819 from the original contractor.

Mr. Branca said that Mr. Holzworth not only failed to prove his charges, but actually disproved them.

they allowed them, then let God bless them for the prudence they showed," Mr. Branca said.

Earlier in the afternoon highway department lawyer Angelo Branca completed his summation.

He called on the MLAs to render a statement that Mr. Gagliardi and his men are "honest people."

"Every member, from the minister of this department down, every one of the splendid heads of this department, want, I believe deserve, your commendation; and you should exonerate these men, many of whom have given years of service in the department. You should completely exonerate them from any wrongdoing in 819 or any duty which they have had to serve."

STOPPED CHEQUES

Mr. Branca recalled that at one stage of Project 819, the highway department had stopped some $128,000 worth of cheques to the contractor.

"If this was the kind of favor

they allowed them, then let God bless them for the prudence they showed," Mr. Branca said.

Empress Staff Can Strike On Notice of 48 Hours

Empress Hotel employees are prepared to strike on 48 hours' notice, Victoria Labor Council was told Wednesday.

Chairman of Local 276, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, Mrs. Rhoda Erickson, denied reports that her 300-member union aimed at a strike target in June.

"Never mind June . . ." Mrs. Erickson said. "The Empress will go on strike with 48 hours' notice when it suits us."

Her statement followed a lengthy report to council on the situation between the union and hotel management as a result of the 15-month-old dispute.

Her report was given to council sitting as committee of the whole rather than in open session.

She said the union was prepared to go back into discussions with the management and labor conciliator W. T. McLaughlin as long as a "responsible person" was sent by the company from CPR head office in Montreal.

The staff has voted overwhelmingly to support a strike since the management refused to accept a conciliation award.

Delegate Fred Bevis said a labor-inspired letter campaign to the company's "top brass" could be undertaken.

"It might forestall an unpleasant thing if we raised a storm of protest in Montreal," he said.

Council reaffirmed a previous resolution supporting the union and any possible action it might take in its struggle with the hotel.

U.K. SPENDS MILLIONS ON HOMES FOR AGED

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government announced Wednesday that more than £200,000,000 will be spent in the next 10 years in a drive to improve health and welfare services.

The allotment complements an earlier £800,000,000 earmarked for hospital construction in the next decade.

The biggest share of the new allotment will be spent on construction of more than 100 new residential homes for old people.

This will bring the number of such homes in England and Wales to 2,784.

DINNER TO END WATER SAFETY COURSE

They'll Dress Up for a Party

There is going to be a dry party at Lee's Restaurant on Flisgard St. tonight but the people who will attend have been getting wet together for the last six months.

It's unlikely they will recognize one another, however.

It will be the first time they have met with their clothes on.

What is going on?

Simply the annual party to celebrate the end of another season of swimming and water safety courses sponsored by Chinatown Lions Club.

600 CANDIDATES

Since last September 600 persons, ranging in age from seven to 73, have taken the tests at end of the course.

The scope of the classes is so wide that a non-swimmer could enter the course and end up as a qualified Red Cross swimming instructor.

Tonight's party and smorgasbord dinner will begin at 6.

The next swimming courses will begin in September.

Arthur Mayse

Youth, as Bernard Shaw observed, is wasted on the young. Conversely, I'm not sure that a man who has left his greenstick days a fair distance behind should be asked to help choose this year's Miss Victoria.

For one thing, the notion's redundant. I picked my Miss Universe while she was still in ankle socks, landed her after a sterner campaign than the wariest trout ever required of me, and have since regarded other females as a mere pleasant garnish to the scenery.

In other words, I've got it made... so what's the sense of sacrificing a number of evenings just to look at a gaggle of girls?

My junior colleagues could not agree more heartily. Several have offered to sub for me. One, drooling slightly, has even guaranteed me free cigarettes and coffee for a month if I weasel him in as a deputy judge.

His idea seems to be that he could handle such trivia as checking how the contestants shape in their swimsuits, leaving me free to concentrate on talent potential and other esoterics.

These offers are tempting, especially the last, but I can't in conscience accept them. I don't feel our future Miss Victoria and her companions should be exposed to young newspapermen. They tend to be light-minded.

So I guess I'm stuck with this boring chore, and must just make the best of it.

I could wish, though, that the venue wasn't Victoria. This isn't to imply that our girls aren't talented; only that they hide their light under a bushel.

Maybe it's our soft, elevating climate. In any case, I can think of no other city in Canada, or the U.S. either, where talent contest sponsors are required to pursue their quarry along downtown streets with oversize butterfly nets.

That's less of an exaggeration than you might imagine. In Calgary, Winnipeg, Montreal and even Toronto, the talent would come flocking. In Halifax, home of Canada's most noteworthy female talent, those long-stemmed South Shore Blue-nose girls would swarm to the challenge with seagull cries of pleasure.

But not in Victoria, oh no! Here, the talent inclines to seek the shade. School superintendent Gough didn't need to count.

DESTRUCTION of McNutt dairy at Wilkinson and Interurban, now a landmark, is scheduled to take place any moment. These and other buildings on property of Byron McNutt will be destroyed by order of Saanich council under provisions of the Municipal Act.

FIRST of the McNutt buildings was consumed in flames Wednesday.

MINESWEEPERS TO KEEP BUSY

Victoria's host of boat watchers along the Dallas Road waterfront will have a pair of navy ships to distract for the next week.

The minesweepers Fortune and James Bay have been assigned a series of harbor approach exercises commencing Friday and continuing to Thursday, April 25.

They will operate in the area from Esquimalt Harbor to Race Rocks and Trial Island. Each will be towing mine disposal paravanes, and other shipping is warned not to pass within 500 yards of either beam, or to cross ahead or astern at a distance less than 1,000 yards.

So what I propose to do is pick the prettiest, nicest girl in sight. As for talent, if she's smart enough to spell cat with no more than two errors, she may my vote.

And as for Mr. Gough, I suggest he turn his attention to the sabotage being inflicted on our young people by certain Chant report usages that ought to bring every school official in the province out fighting.

It didn't really mean it about those Blue-nose girls.

Just needing, in the hope that a bunch more of our Victoria daffodils will step out to be counted.

Business Tax Rate To Stay Unchanged?

City finance committee today recommended that the business tax be struck ahead of the budget at last year's 6% per cent rate.

It would bring in an estimated $370,000 revenue — up about

Labor Wants Public Defender

The provincial government will be asked by Victoria Labor Council to appoint a public defender for people who can't pay for legal expenses.

The move, similar to a previous recommendation from council some years ago, was suggested at a Labor Council meeting Wednesday night by Civic Employees' Union delegate Charles Thompson, who spoke on behalf of senior citizens' groups.

He drew attention to the fact that often people of limited income are unable to go through with court or other legal proceedings due to the heavy cost.

Another delegate said legal aid, offered as a service of the Law Society, could be given free to deserving people.

A delegate said people should not have to beg for help, but know that aid would be available through a public defender if needed.

Council will inform B.C. Federation of Labor of the request for possible endorsement by the federation's annual convention.

To allow time for the change, the 7 a.m. trip from Port Angeles, and the 9 a.m. departure from Victoria will be cancelled. Regular service will resume with the 11 a.m. Port Angeles and 1 p.m. Victoria departures.

The ship will remain in Seattle Saturday night to have new, five-blade propellers installed to replace the older-type four-blade wheels.

To allow time for the change, the 7 a.m. trip from Port Angeles, and the 9 a.m. departure from Victoria will be cancelled. Regular service will resume with the 11 a.m. Port Angeles and 1 p.m. Victoria departures.

Alpine Rock Garden Show Opens Friday

Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Society will hold its annual show of rock garden plants from 2 to 10 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Saturday at Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall.

On display will be many small plants which persons with limited garden space can grow by following simple instructions.

Four out of five proposed local improvement projects on three Oak Bay streets have been rejected by frontage owners.

Council received the last opposing petition this week — 47 property owners on Hampshire between Oak Bay and Cranmore Road.

Only one stretch of street went unopposed as projected under a new method of cost sharing in local improvements — a block-long part of St. Ann between the fire hall and Cranmore Road.

Previously rejected were Monterey between Oak Bay and the fire hall, St. Ann from Cranmore to Bowker and Hampshire between Cranmore and Bowker.

The municipality has up to four years in which to proceed with the approved piece, which has never had a permanent local improvement for sidewalks, curbs, uniformly paved street and ornamental trees.

Dairy Farm Buildings Set Fire by Saanich

Neighbors Protest Condemnation Order

By IAIN HUNTER

A Saanich small-scale dairy farmer discovered Wednesday that he could not prevent the municipal council from tearing down his farm buildings.

Armed with a council order, workmen moved onto the property of Byron McNutt, at 4143 Wilkinson Road, and began to tear down and burn every one of the buildings which comprise his dairy.

The demolition follows condemnation of the buildings as unsightly, unsanitary, or unsafe under the provisions of the Municipal Act.

Mr. McNutt, who lives on Grange Road, does not understand how the municipality can invade his privacy in this manner.

CRYPTIC SIGNS

Neither can neighbors who have come to regard "Barny" McNutt and his ramshackle property, bordered by cryptic signs, as "part of the landscape."

Mr. McNutt thinks hostility from Saanich council stems from the day his herd was found to be infected with a disease called brucellosis.

This is a blood disease in cattle which can cause undulant fever in human beings who drink the milk from infected cows.

The bearded farmer boasts that at one time he had 40 head on his property. He has only 16 cows today.

From the doorway of one of the condemned sheds he faced a reporter and photographer Wednesday afternoon.

"They take my cows away one by one, but I try to replace them," he said.

PRAISE FROM AUTO MAN

Canadians Need Not Take Any Back Seat'

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Canadians have grown up with an interiority complex about their abilities, particularly in the field of secondary manufacturing, according to Earl K. Brownridge, president of American Motor Company of Canada, Brampton, Ont.

This feeling, he said in an interview in Victoria today, is the result of Canada so long being engaged principally in the export of raw materials.

But if Canadians would take a look at their long list of "firsts" in many fields — everything from insulin to instant mashed potatoes — they would realize that Canada doesn't need to take back seat to any country in its abilities, Mr. Brownridge declared.

UNIQUE FILM

Mr. Brownridge, who was president of the Orenda engine division of A. V. Roe Company before joining American Motors in 1960, brought with him to Victoria a unique film to show to Victoria Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel at noon today.

Titled "Brampton Makes a Car," it is the first film ever done about the auto industry in Canada.

It has excited considerable interest, Mr. Brownridge said, and is being taken by the National Film Board for television showing as well as by the Ontario department of education.

In addition to showing the manufacture of autos at the American Motors plant, the film gives Mr. Brownridge's philosophy, in interviews, on the role of secondary manufacturing in Canada.

Ask The Times

Q. Is there any special reason why Queen Elizabeth and Mrs. Kennedy (wife of U.S. President Kennedy) wore black gowns and veils when they visited Pope John at the Vatican? J.A.H.

A. It is traditional for women to wear black when they are presented to the Pope. But Catholic queens are traditionally permitted to wear white.

WAS BARE FIELD

He cited as an example his own plant in Brampton which started out as a bare field in June of 1960 and seven months later rolled off its first Rambler.

Those houses don't do anyone any harm. Sure they're falling down, but I would have repaired them if they hadn't taken away my bread and butter."

He was asked what he would do with the cattle and property when the demolition was completed.

"I don't know what I can do. But I do know that in the end I will win."

For a moment he became belligerent, then he looked at the burning lumber.

NOTHING LEFT

"But what have I got to win?" he asked. "There'll be nothing left by then."

Some of Mr. McNutt's neighbors said he was going to do it.

"It's a damned crime that anyone should be able to destroy a man's private property," Mrs. Juanita Mahaffy said.

She has been living across from the McNutt dairy for 12 years at 1176 Dunsterville.

"We don't find it offensive," she said, speaking for a knot of nearby residents gathered at her house. "I'd like to know just how that bloody council can do a thing like this without even asking the neighbors."

"There wasn't even petitioning," she charged.

OWN CONCERN

Mrs. Kathryn Martin, 1265 Dunsterville, who has been a neighbor of Mr. McNut's for 30 years, said the matter of the diseased cattle was different "in that it concerned public health, but these buildings are his own concern."

Barny is part of the landscape — they can't do this to him," she said.

"And he has an 80-year-old mother living with him: this is killing her," she added.

Please Note Correction—Egg Cups Are Not Scarce

By PENNY SAVER

Penny has mentioned several times during the winter that egg cups are few and far between. Well that "ain't necessarily so." In a store where Penny shopped today there are egg cups aplenty. In fact, this week, semi-porcelain egg cups in pink or blue are being offered at a special price of 30 cents each.

But these are not all they have to offer. They have a whole shelf filled with egg cups in open stock pattern for as little as 35 cents or as much as $1.05.

Also, double egg cups are available in the harvest pattern, or one of many other designs. Prices, 85 cents to $1.25.

Novelty semi-porcelain egg cups are 19 cents each, or plain glass, two for 25 cents.

You may run out of eggs but there definitely is no reason why you should be short on cups.

In another store the newest in spring wear is cotton nighties with matching dusters. They are cool and easy to care for when at home, or ideal for tucking in the corner of an overnight bag or a large-size purse. Price is $3.98 each.

If you would like to pay as much as $10.98 you can buy a pyjama set that will do double duty for lounging or wearing at the beach.

The gay print sleeveless top is worn over slim pants in a complementary plain color with print trim. And over this goes a very chic sleeveless tunic, all the rage this year.

The bold colors and patterns on these drip-dry cottons include burnt orange in abstract designs or large red strawberries on a white background.

Whether it is egg cups you want to buy or a new spring nightie, phone Penny at 382-3131 and she will tell you where to shop.

Most Men Need Help for Bay Window, Weak Arms

Very often, husbands write asking me to send reducing leaflets to their wives. Well, girls, here's your chance to get even. Today, you can write for information your husband needs. All you have to do is send a stamped, self-addressed envelope along with your request for his medicine.

My guess is that your requests will be for help for the bay window. Men don't look any better with a protruding tummy than women do. In addition, there is the thickening waistline which can give a middle-aged appearance to both men and women who aren't really middle-aged at all! One masculine friend of mine has been taking Why Grow Old? waist-reducing exercises for a long time and has given his belt as a trophy—the belt he took up four notches.

Then, too many men have the sloping shoulder line, never attractive in a masculine silhouette. Men like good chest muscles and a baseball in their upper arm. The following exercise is one men like to do. (If your man is completely out of condition, it will be too hard for him, but I believe most men can execute this one with little or no trouble.)

Lie on the floor on your back. Legs are straight and arms are on the floor, overhead. Raise the trunk, arms and legs (knees stiff) at the

TODAY'S RECIPE*SOUTH SEAS STEAK:

Two pounds top round steak,  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup wine vinegar, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 2 tablespoons soy sauce, 2 tablespoons instant minced onion, 1 tablespoon brown sugar,  $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon ground ginger,  $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon dry mustard,  $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon pepper, 1 clove garlic, finely chopped, 2 tablespoons cornstarch,  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup water.

Place steak in flat dish. Combine all remaining ingredients except cornstarch and water. Pour over steak, cover, and marinate in refrigerator 2 or 3 hours.

Remove steak from marinade, cut into 4 or 5 serving pieces and place on broiler rack. Combine marinade with cornstarch and water. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly until thickened. Broil steak 3 minutes on each side. Serve at once with marinade sauce.

Makes 4 or 5 servings.

DEAR ABBY . . .*Let HIM End It!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last year, when I was hospitalized, my neighbor and "very dear friend" helped my husband care for our two youngsters. I thought I would never be able to repay her for her kindness—until several weeks ago when my husband confessed that their relationship had gone beyond what he ever thought it would. He said he was sorry and asked my forgiveness. The "friend" tries to act normal. She doesn't know my husband has told me. We own our home and I don't intend to move. I cannot bear the sight of this two-faced woman. What should I do when she comes knocking at my door with her sweet smile and her apple pies?

BETRAYED.

DEAR BETRAYED: I presume your husband knows this woman well enough to speak to her. Ask HIM to tell her that he has confessed to you. I doubt if you'll be bothered again with either her sweet smile OR her apple pies. And if she sends anything else over, don't eat it.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your women readers to be careful.

Makes Storm In a Tea Cup

By PAT DUFOUR

A 21-year-old with more titles than a European princess breezed into town today and took it by storm. Sponsored by the Tea Council of Canada, Miss Iris Thirlwell is Miss Tea 1963 and presently on a cross-Canada jaunt to promote Tea for Canada Week, which begins Monday.

The vivacious blonde first began her title collecting when in high school. They include Miss Snow Queen, Miss Hummer Gun Club (she's a top shot with 303 and 22s), Miss Outdoor Girl of 1960, Miss Safe Driving Road-e-o, Miss Canadian Encyclopedia, Miss Speed Sport of 1963, and Miss Canada of 1960.

In fact, her father, Lt.-Col. W. N. Thirlwell, started her family's habit of referring to her as "Mis-cellaneous."

In between title-collecting, Miss Thirlwell manages to get in plenty of shooting, horseback riding, swimming, and enough study to make her an outstanding second-year student at the Ontario College of Art in Toronto.

Her most nervous moment was when she returned from the Miss America contest in Atlantic City in time to give the valedictory at her high school's graduation ceremonies.

"Although I'd won all those contests I was as nervous as a kitten. I'd wanted to be valedictorian ever since I joined high school and it was one of the biggest moments of my life."

Miss Tea has three green tea leaves embroidered on the pillbox hat she wears with her smart travelling suit.

"This is to make sure that people know who I am! Otherwise they might mistake me for the puppet."

The puppet is Teaki, an elfin character who helps entertain her guests as she presides at the tea table at numerous parties across the country.

When she promotes tea, she means what she says. "I'm always the one who makes the tea at our five o'clock breaks in college."

Although Miss Tea informs you that 75 per cent of Canadians use tea bags, she's found that East and West Coasters use more loose tea than anyone else.

"Canadians," Miss Thirlwell reports, "prefer black tea and, after all, can you think of anything more refreshing?"

A Bonus of Leisure Time Comes With 1963 Ranges

How big a package does most of the ranges women have to contend with is often a frustrating experience of guessing, watching and waiting. And cleaning up can be equally aggravating, since even the best cook has boilovers, burnt food and scorched pots.

PROBLEMS ENDED

Here is how the 1963 range solves these problems:

It is automatic. Top of the range cooking can be temperature controlled, whether you want 150° for mashed potatoes or 400° for French fries. The oven will take your roast from the freezer, gently thaw it out, cook it to the degree of doneness you like, and then hold it at a perfect 170° serving temperature for hours without drying it out.

It is clean. It stays cleaner to begin with, because controlled temperature eliminates boilovers on top of the range and prevents superheated grease from splattering the oven. Just about everything on the 1963 range that needs occasional cleaning lifts up, pulls out, or comes off for cleaning in the sink.

The lucky lady who gets a 1963 range is getting more than just an appliance which will make her work easier.

She is, in effect, receiving a "package" of leisure time. These extra moments will come to her every day of the year and they are hers to do with just as she wants.

That's even more true in 1963 than it was as recently as two or three years ago. Thermostatic controls now have been successfully applied to top-of-the-range cooking as well as the oven. The housewife who owns a modern range with these automatic controls can put the pan on the range, set the temperature, and walk out of the kitchen.

A "sensing" device feels the temperature of the saucepan and relays this to an automatic control which keeps heat at full intensity, lowers it slightly, brings it back up, cuts it off almost completely—keeping the dish always at the temperature the housewife selected.

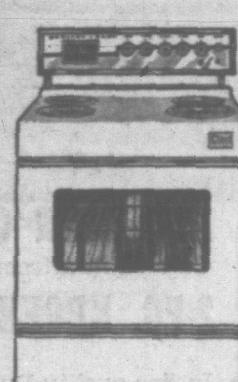

But let's face it. Cooking on

Men! Give Cooking Should be Fun The 'Artist' Her Chance

Do you know which household job women like best?

Survey after survey indicates that women get the most enjoyment out of cooking. The reason is simple: cooking is creative work.

You'll never be able to settle the argument as to whether she is a better cook than grandmother was. But one thing is certain. With 1963's ranges the modern housewife can do things grandma would never have thought of trying—and all with a minimum of work.

Many fancy dishes required hours of preparation and close attention over a long period of time. Grandma just couldn't take that much time to prepare a gourmet's delight.

NO WATCHING

Your wife, however, can have a 1963 range at her beck and call, complete with a variety of automatic cooking controls to insure that once a meal is underway it doesn't require constant attention.

That's even more true in 1963 than it was as recently as two or three years ago. Thermostatic controls now have been successfully applied to top-of-the-range cooking as well as the oven. The housewife who owns a modern range with these automatic controls can put the pan on the range, set the temperature, and walk out of the kitchen.

A "sensing" device feels the temperature of the saucepan and relays this to an automatic control which keeps heat at full intensity, lowers it slightly, brings it back up, cuts it off almost completely—keeping the dish always at the temperature the housewife selected.

Cooking Should be Fun

Cooking should be fun—and it always will be, thanks to new conveniences incorporated as part of the modern range. From beginning to end—from planning a meal to cleaning up afterwards. A raised edge around the tops of some 1963 ranges keeps spills from going over the edge, and the tops of some tilt up for easy cleaning.

It's Easy to Become An Ex-Stove Watcher

Are you a stove watcher? Then you are helping to prove a rumor that has somehow begun to run rampant in the behind-the-scenes world where kitchen ranges are designed and distributed. Rumor has it that the average modern housewife is afraid of the automatic features built into her kitchen range.

Since 1963 is the year of more and vastly improved automatic cooking aids, the behind-the-scenes world is in a virtual dither of worry that these time-saving devices won't be appreciated and won't be used.

Actually, automatic cooking was never very complicated, but in their concern to explain special features, the manufacturers of kitchen ranges frequently provided such extensive and elaborate instructions that housewives may have been overwhelmed by the length and bulk of the step-by-step directions.

Whatever the reason in the past that may have inhibited fullest use of the automatic features of your old kitchen range, you will quickly discover that the 1963 models offer the least complicated automatic cooking ever available. One trial will prove the exhilarating pleasure of away-from-home cooking.

NO WORRY

You can carry on other occupations and not worry about dinner being ready at the exact moment that you want it. If dad is late your oven will "hold" the meal at warm, but not drying, temperature . . . believe it or not!

If you have two ovens, each may be operated independently of the other, but usually only one of the ovens will be completely automatic. The manually controlled oven can be used on-the-scene to supplement the automatic oven space, or to bake foods requiring a different temperature.

Let's say you want to prepare a heavy roast of beef in your automatic oven. All you do is set the time-to-stop button to the time of your dinner hour. Then set the time-to-cook knob to the proper cooking time. Next, set the oven temperature control to the degree of heat desired. The oven will turn itself on, cook at the proper temperature for the pre-set length of time, and then automatically turn itself off.

After you have set two or three knobs, the oven does everything automatically. The most difficult part of the entire operation is to remember when you remove the food from the oven, to return the automatic control from "off" to manual so the oven will heat when you want to use it for the next on-the-scene baking or roasting.

A number of new range models have an automatic meat thermometer. This is a skewer-like probe which is inserted in the meat. By registering internal temperature, it assures that the meat will be cooked as desired. Some models even hold meat at that stage of doneness until you are ready to serve them. The meat may be carved, covered with a damp cloth, and will stay hot and juicy, and from home economists and food testers.

CLEANING THE NEW STOVES is "easy as pie" with features such as pull-out oven interiors with rounded corners, oven doors that lift off and surface cooking units that lift up for access to drip bowls.

More Time, Clean Kitchen Results With New Ranges

Women want ranges that are easy to clean—and they're getting them.

Electric cooking has always meant clean cooking and the 1963 electric ranges make it even cleaner. Improved designs and special easy-to-clean features help keep the new electric ranges cleaner and also make them easier to clean when food does spill.

Surface cooking elements are self cleaning, as are the rod-type broil and bake elements in electric ovens and broilers. Surface elements lift up, and some can be removed for easy access to the reflector bowl beneath. These, as well as the adapter rings around the surface elements, lift up or down while others are removable to give access to the entire interior. Some oven doors lift off for washing at the sink. Others drop down to make it easy to reach inside.

A major reason electric ranges stay clean is that accurate automatic controls for both surface units and ovens prevent boilovers, bake-ons, and the other messy results of old-fashioned, inaccurate temperature and time controls.

If you have an old range—and they were built to last—you're missing many of the benefits and pleasures that the advanced, new models offer.

And this applies not only to the most expensive ranges. Manufacturers are placing more and more of the top-of-the-line features throughout their lines.

This is important, because the new ranges, with all of the advances built into them, are generally less expensive than the models that were sold ten years ago.

In 1954 (the first year that retail prices were tabulated and recorded), the average price for an electric built-in range was $289. In 1962, it was $270. Free-standing electrics averaged out at $260 in 1954; $250 in 1962. Gas-operated models also offer more features now, at comparatively lower prices.

How was this accomplished in the face of rising prices? Practically all other consumer durable goods, with the exception of major appliances, have increased in price over the last decade.

Once 'Plain Jane' Now Glamor Girl

Once the Plain Jane of kitchen appliances, the range has blossomed during the past five years into a glamor girl of brains and beauty.

The extent of the transformation is particularly evident this month. You'll see the greatest variety and values in ranges ever, under banners reading "It's time to change to a '63 range."

It's all the result of manufacturers, utilities and dealers joining in a promotion to show homemakers the amazing work-saving and time-saving abilities of modern ranges.

The generic term "stove" just doesn't apply any longer. Technological advances have made the "range" a completely new appliance.

A major factor in improved design and reliability in ranges—also important in keeping prices down—is improved steels. A range is 95 per cent steel, much of it new and special steels.

LASTING FINISH

One example of cost-saving due to steel is a special sheet that takes a beautiful and lasting porcelain enamel finish in one coat instead of the previous two. Components which must stand up to high temperatures are made of aluminum-coated steel. Zinc-coated steel and stainless steel give dependable service in parts subject to corrosion.

If you want them to be, the days of cooking guesswork—"standing over a hot stove"—can be over.

This is a new era; an era of complete automation, combined with total flexibility. It is also a period of excellent exterior silhouette. Today, there is a range that will fill your needs and improve the appearance of your kitchen.

Preparing attractive and interesting dishes is one of the few creative outlets in the homemaker's daily routine.

PROGRAM COOKING

Preway built-in ovens feature program cooking, which requires only two dial settings—time and temperature. The oven cooks the food then holds it at an ideal "keep warm" temperature as long as necessary without loss of tenderness or moisture.

Top Kitchen Meets 3 Main Requisites

"Much surface appeal is put into kitchens of new houses so they seem new and modern. Don't be misled, for the kitchen that looks most glamorous at first glance often turns out hopelessly inadequate."

This warning appears in A. M. Watkins' book, "Building or Buying the High-Quality House at Lowest Cost." According to Watkins, a good kitchen meets three main requirements:

1. It conforms to the work-triangle principle.

2. It provides adequate storage and counter space.

3. It is pleasant to work and eat in.

The work-triangle principle refers to the proper relationship of the refrigerator-freezer, sink, and range. According to a Cornell University study, a triangle drawn from refrigerator-freezer to sink to range and back should total between 12 and 20 feet. If it's much more, too much walking is required.

'Tax Manipulation'
Proposed to Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—A suggestion that the government be given power to manipulate taxes without previous Parliamentary approval was made by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association
Wednesday as a possible method of intercepting any threatening recession.

For Diabetics

Diabetic children from Victoria and district will attend a health camp at Camp Kopje, Okanagan Centre, from Aug. 13 to 27, organized by the B.C. division, Canadian Diabetic Association.

They will be joined by children from many other parts of the province. The cost per child is $150 of which the parents are asked to pay $35, if financially able.

TAG DAY

To help cover expenses, Victoria and district branch of the Diabetic Association will hold a Tag Day this Saturday.

"We would be happy to hear from anyone who is willing to devote an hour of their time to our Tag Day," says director Mrs. B. Johnson, who can be reached at EV 4-9555.

70 MEMBERS

Since its formation eight years ago, Victoria and district branch has grown to a membership of about 70 local citizens.

"Our aim is to help diabetics to help themselves and one another through education and recognized treatment," said Fred Manson, a director of the branch. "There is a definite restriction" since the study "will undoubtedly reveal the harmful effects on the economy of the present high burden of taxation."

It added that "unless there is relief from rising government expenditure, the lot of the taxpayer must grow steadily worse, with an inevitable slowing up in national economic growth and a decline in prosperity."

"We would welcome sponsorship by a service club or any interested organization."

Persons seeking information are asked to write to the Canadian Diabetic Association, Box 672, General Post Office, Victoria, B.C.

ELECTION

At its recent annual meeting, the Victoria branch elected B. Johnson as its president, with J. Chaplin, vice-president; Miss M. Oliver, secretary. Directors are F. Manson, H. R. Witter, William McCall, H. McDonnell, Miss B. King, Mrs. B. Johnson, Miss E. M. Boyd, E. Arval and Mrs. H. Staines.

Mrs. Diane Brown, immediate past-president of the branch, has been elected provincial president, with B. Johnson (Victoria) as vice-president, and F. Hall (Victoria), secretary.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Jayne Mansfield has decided to divorce her husband Mickey Hargitay, her lawyer said Wednesday. Miss Mansfield, who is in Bixby, Miss., conferred with lawyer Jerry Schutzbach and they decided to use the same divorce papers drawn up after an earlier argument.

CONTRADICTS HARVISON

RCMP Security Probe
Backed by Douglas

VANCOUVER (CP)—T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said today he will ask the justice minister "for a select committee of the House of Commons" to look into security investigations procedures of the RCMP.

In a statement issued from his home here, Mr. Douglas said recent statements by Commissioner G. W. Harvison of the RCMP "points up the need for a special committee of the House of Commons to look into the security investigations of the RCMP."

He referred to a recent issue of Maclean's Magazine which reported that a Regina woman was interrogated periodically by a system of graduated rates that would allow for inequalities in the buying power of consumers.

The CLC is one of seven organizations appearing before the six-man royal commission this week, outlining general views on taxation problems before the commission begins regional hearings in Montreal Monday.

The brief predicted that public spending, in relation to the gross national product, will continue to rise in the future. "Old concepts of a limited role for government in taxation was asked by the association to make a study of the possibility of the government regulating taxes within a fixed range because 'it has been claimed that a tax reduction immediately effective . . . is likely to be more effective in combating the onset of a depression than increasing government expenditures.'

The brief said that because government expenditures on public projects require extensive planning, they are not likely to produce increased spending power for some time. Tax reductions would create additional spending power immediately.

At the same time, the association asked the six-man commission, headed by Kenneth Carter, a Toronto chartered accountant, to study the Canadian tax system in relation to the United States.

MUST LOOK GOOD

"If Canada must look to foreign investors for needed capital, it is important that the Canadian tax climate appear attractive to those non-residents who are in a position to decide where investments will be made."

Such a study was particularly important now since President Kennedy had proposed reductions in American personal and corporate taxes.

The brief said the association regretted the royal commission's terms of reference and said that recommendations must be consistent with a sufficient flow of revenue.

The association termed this a "restriction" since the study "will undoubtedly reveal the harmful effects on the economy of the present high burden of taxation."

It added that "unless there is relief from rising government expenditure, the lot of the taxpayer must grow steadily worse, with an inevitable slowing up in national economic growth and a decline in prosperity."

Peters immediately headed for Tampa, Fla., took a hotel room and began trading large amounts of Canadian money for American currency at less than the exchange rate. This drew suspicion and on April 9 he was arrested by FBI agents.

Cooke, now a United States citizen and resident of California, claimed the station had illegally terminated his contract as a consultant.

Under terms of the contract, Cooke was to be retained as long as the station didn't go bankrupt, lose its licence or lose profits below a certain level.

Justice S. N. Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled that none of these things happened and that CKOY had shown a profit of $1.6 million while Cooke was associated with the station.

CKOY terminated Cooke's contract in 1961 shortly after he moved to the U.S.

Detective James Galloway who told the court of the robbery plan of Peters, whose parents are cleaners in the bank, said the youth took his father's key April 4 and used it to enter the bank April 6 to collect four bags deposited in the wrong slot.

Peters immediately headed for Tampa, Fla., took a hotel room and began trading large amounts of Canadian money for American currency at less than the exchange rate. This drew suspicion and on April 9 he was arrested by FBI agents.

He was arrested for a small surplus, Reeve A. C. Wurtzel said.

He added the fine had been held on the mill rate for the last four years.

Properties such as apartments, shipyards and other businesses, and in the Parklands area off Admirals Road near HMCS Naden will go up. Owners of smaller wartime homes will pay between $8 or $9 less than previously, while owners of properties in the $2,460 to $10,000 bracket will pay an approximately $10 tax increase.

At the same council meeting, municipal engineer John Graeme was authorized to draw up a referendum for a municipal swimming pool.

Cost is estimated at $200,000, with an annual operating cost of about $30,000.

2-MILL BOOST Accepted
By Esquimalt

A two-mill increase on tax bills of Esquimalt ratepayers was decided on by council Wednesday night.

The increased school tax levy was announced as the cause of one-and-a-half mills of the increase, while the remainder is due to requirements to budget for a small surplus, Reeve A. C. Wurtzel said.

He added the fine had been held on the mill rate for the last four years.

Properties such as apartments, shipyards and other businesses, and in the Parklands area off Admirals Road near HMCS Naden will go up.

Miss Demmery has considerable experience teaching drama to retarded children and providing courses on child drama to school teachers.

She is a member of the Incorporated Society of Musicians and has been teaching in the summer schools of the Educational Drama Association for the past four years.

Nkrumah Foes to Die
As Leniency Refused

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters)—A special court Wednesday sentenced five men to be hanged for treason and attempts to assassinate President Kwame Nkrumah.

Mensah claimed the plan was only to frighten people, not to kill anyone.

Agriculture Minister Krobo Edusei denied allegations during the trial that he was implicated in the plot against Nkrumah.

Tula said Edusei handed out £200 to be shared among "the boys" who made a bomb attempt on the president last August.

Other ministers and former ministers also were named as attending at the house of an alleged conspirator, the late Obetsebi Lamptey.

Two other accused—Sulemana Jeremiah and Asaaba Quarcoo, a woman—were found guilty of misprision (concealment) of treason and sentenced to eight and five years imprisonment respectively.

There is no appeal, except directly to Nkrumah.

Chemainus Group Ponders Change

NORTH COWICHAN—Reeve Donald C. Morton of the Municipality of North Cowichan will meet with a delegation of Chemainus taxpayers in the near future to discuss whether the village should become an urban area within the municipality or whether Chemainus should continue as part of the municipality.

Mrs. Marie Groner, spokesman for the ratepayers informed council members Wednesday that Chemainus residents have no intention of seceding from the municipality, and added that their purpose in approaching the council was to acquire information on the taxes of different groups including professional men, businesses, and property owners.

Construction contractors Don Huntley and R. A. Hemsworth asked council to review its policy on work done by city works crews, particularly outside city limits.

"The highway department is so busy building its own roads it hasn't time to look after ordinary maintenance properly in rural areas," he said.

He said arguments that works crews had to be kept busy and the city could give a better price worried him.

HAVE NO CHOICE

Property owners have no choice of price when civic crews move in and do work non-competitively, he said, and extra jobs tended toward building up bigger and bigger work crews.

Contractors pay heavy licences for their equipment inventory and often have to settle for only the small jobs in the community, he said.

Mr. Huntley suggested a change in policy here could set a precedent that might change the provincial trend.

Mayor W. C. Moore said that civic crews went outside the limits only for work on city-owned water lines.

Council referred the matter to the water committee for further study.

Little Hope Held for 7 On Fishboat

Little hope was held today for seven persons aboard a fishboat missing for five days in the Alert Bay area.

RCMP rescue centre recalled an aircraft Wednesday night after an intensive eight-hour sweep of the area. RCMP are continuing to direct several vessels in the search.

The 30-foot fishboat, the Lady Sharon, left Alert Bay at 8 p.m. Saturday for the 2½-hour crossing to Village Island Indian reserves. They have not been heard of since.

RCMP were notified at 4 p.m. Thursday that the boat had not turned up.

Aboard the Lady Sharon were: Matthew Pugnas and his wife, Lucy; their son, Matthew, Jr., nine, and daughter, Barbara, four; Lily Charley and her son, Tommy, 12, and Andy Williams.

Dogs Preying on Sheep

DUNCAN—Cpl. G. S. Irvine, RCMP, Duncan detachment, reported Wednesday that numerous complaints have been received at the local office regarding dogs which are injuring and killing sheep in the district, especially in the Somons and Inverarity Road areas.

He stated that E. Suominen, of Wicks Road, recently had several sheep injured and killed, and Tom Cleugh, Bell-McKinnon Road, had to destroy five ewes and seven lambs following an attack by dogs.

Police said owners are responsible for the actions of their animals, and can be assessed the value of the sheep if their dogs are held to blame.

During the North Cowichan municipal council meeting Wednesday a suggestion was made by Reeve Don Morton to put more money into the sheep claim fund if the injuring and killing of sheep continues. Mr. Cleugh was awarded a total of $174 by the municipality for his loss.

LONDON—Magician William McComb whipped defence exhibit "A" out of the basket—a white rabbit. The rabbit's name was Ferguson. His nose twitched.

McComb, charged with parking near a theatre during no-parking hours, produced Ferguson as mitigating evidence.

He explained to the magistrate that he has eight rabbits to carry around and they are heavy, which is why he prefers to park as near to the theatre as possible.

"If I carry them through the streets," he said, "the RSPCA (Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals) would be down on me like a ton of bricks."

And with a flourish Ferguson materialized, held by his long ears.

Magistrate Nigel Robinson did not applaud.

He said: "I'm afraid that won't help me, Mr. McComb. So will you kindly put it away."

Ferguson disappeared into the basket.

McComb was then invited to produce a £2 10s ($7.50) fine from his wallet.

NEW YORK—Evangelist Billy Graham, saying he would not "recommend teen-agers getting married except under extraordinary circumstances," announced Wednesday he would attend the May 3 wedding of his 17-year-old daughter to the son of a wealthy Armenian financier in Switzerland.

"These are extraordinary circumstances," Graham said.

"He is one of the most dedicated young men I have ever met. I have had people from all over the world... as well as psychologists... write me and ask why I encourage this marriage since she is only 17."

"I have said that since that man is one of the most wonderful men we've ever met, my wife and I have encouraged them to marry."

NEW DELHI, India—United States Ambassador John K. Galbraith decided today to rename the family's pet kitten after a misunderstanding that threatened to grow into an international incident.

Galbraith was told a Moslem leader in Lahore, Pakistan, thought the kitten was named Mohammed after the Moslem prophet and had called for a public protest because of the "insult" to the prophet.

The Canadian-born ambassador said it was all a mistake, but the kitten will get a new name anyway.

"My children were given the cat some time ago on their visit to Ahmedabad," he said. "They named it not Ahmed (a derivative of Mohammed) but Ahmedabad, after its birthplace."

"But they think that a kitten should not, however innocent, be the cause of trouble or concern. They prefer to rename it Gujerat."

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Billie Sol Estes visited a training school for Negroes here Wednesday and delivered a short talk on "the need for love."

Tears flowed down his cheeks at one point when he referred to one of the students he had sponsored at the school.

Estes was introduced by Institute president Rev. Willing T. Cato and received loud applause.

Cato said Estes "has been one of our biggest contributors and had financed the education of about 40 of our boys."

"Our prayers have been with this man and our love, our prayers and best wishes will continue to be with him," Cato said. "We are delighted he is in our presence. He is our friend and he has helped us. We love him for what he has done."

Estes has been sentenced to 15 years in federal prison and eight years in a Texas prison on charges of manipulation of fertilizer tank mortgages. He is free on $150,000 bond.

Today, however, there had been little expectation that Mr. Dietenbaker or any of his ministers would be making any newsworthy statements.

A photographer was on hand for the break-up of the cabinet meeting, and he was told by the prime minister that there were no announcements and that no further meetings were scheduled between then and Monday.

Outgoing Public Works Minister Dave Fulton told a reporter later that all the members of the cabinet were on call, but that none expected to receive any call to another meeting.

Mr. Fulton, new leader of the B.C. Progressive Conservatives, said he would return to B.C. on Tuesday to take up his leadership duties on a full-time basis.

The Prime Minister was expected to spend a quiet and reflective last weekend at the prime ministerial summit in his home at Harrington Lake, in the Gatinéau Hills across the Gatineau River.

It quits on Monday.

High-Rise Foe Critical Of 'Autocratic' Council

Bitter high-rise foe Mrs. Shirley Dowell, 320 Upper Terrace Road, today suggested an "autocratic" Oak Bay council pushed the Victoria University development board around.

She also said the tallest fire truck ladder in Greater Victoria could only reach the eighth storey of a 12-storey high rise apartment building.

Mrs. Dowell, in a written statement, asked: "What happens if you live above the eighth floor?"

She said high-rise apartment dwellers do not pay direct property taxes yet will be the cause of demands for more fire trucks, larger sewer and water services, better roads and street lighting which homeowners will have to provide through taxes.

FORCED AGREEMENT

Turning to Oak Bay council, the statement claimed:

"In 1961 the council forced on the university development board an agreement to use 40 acres of campus, fronting on Cedar Hill Cross Road and Gordon Head Road, for high-rise buildings."

Mrs. Dowell said this would "create a wall of concrete and glass around three sides of the university campus."

She said the university development board had to give in to Oak Bay's demands because the municipality had virtually veto power over the transfer of Hudson's Bay Company land to the university.

The municipality also insisted on receiving free of charge a total of four acres of road allowance from the campus.

HAD TO ACCEPT

"The university development board was compelled by Oak Bay to accept the (high rise) lease arrangement," the statement said.

"They were very unhappy about this as they then had to northward."

Mrs. Dowell appealed to Oak Bay and Saanich councillors who have favored high-rise developments in residential areas to admit they made a mistake and rectify the error before it is too late."

She urged all opponents of high-rise apartments to phone her at EV 6-4683, Mrs. Anne Gray at GR 7-3061 or Mrs. Katharine Cameron at GR 7-1270.

COLUMBIA ACTION SOON FORECAST BY WILLISTON

SEATTLE (CP) — British Columbia Lands and Forests Minister Williston said Wednesday he believes the new Liberal government, once it takes office, will move toward ratification of the Columbia River power development treaty "at an early date."

Addressing the Northwest Power Association, the minister said every effort has been made by B.C. authorities "to begin construction the minute the document becomes a document of action."

The province, he said, has already spent $8,000,000 toward construction of the three dams called for in the multi-million-dollar power development plan.

And he gave assurance that B.C. is committed to spend all the money it will receive in the exchange agreement toward the river's development.

'Not Just Japanese Guilty of Poaching'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada knows that Japanese and Russian fleets are poaching halibut in the eastern Bering Sea, an official said today.

But it is impossible to prove it, said R. T. Hager, of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission.

"It's not just the Japanese who are guilty. The Soviets have been taking millions of pounds of fish out of the area."

Mr. Hager said the situation will get worse unless the existing treaty between Canada, the United States and Japan is renegotiated or a new one signed.

"Without some law, every country in the world will be fishing 12 months of the year to the three-mile limit off our shores."

Patrol boats have found it impossible to catch the foreign fleet because they cut their lines or take other manoeuvres, said Mr. Hager.

B.C. fishermen are meanwhile unhappy with a recommendation by the fisheries commission to let Japanese boats take halibut in the Eastern Bering.

"Yet not one in 1,000 of them has even bothered to read the treaty," he said. "They are mostly bothered by the smoke-screen put out by their own union. And that policy seems to be: Hate the U.S.; to hell with the Japs but never mention the Soviets."

Youth Crashes 'The Wall' Amid Fusilade of Bullets

BERLIN (AP) — An East German youth who smashed through the Berlin wall in an East German army armored car Wednesday night was reported in satisfactory condition despite a bullet wound in his chest.

A doctor said if everything goes well, he will be out of the hospital in three weeks.

Wolfgang Engels suffered wounds in his chest and hand and multiple cuts and abrasions.

Engels, 19, took the Soviet-made armored car out of the East German army garage where he worked as a civilian mechanic.

Shortly before 8 p.m. he crawled down the east side of Elsenstrasse toward the wall, shouting, "I am going over who wants to go with me?"

Communist border guards fired their sub-machine-guns as the nine-ton vehicle plowed into the first concrete barrier. The impact sprung the rear armored doors and two bullets hit Engels.

The car got stuck in the second wall, which forms the border with West Berlin.

Unable to crawl through the hole because the car was blocking it, the wounded youth climbed atop the seven-foot wall, shouting for help.

As the East Berlin guards kept firing, the youth got tangled in the barbed wire atop the wall, then pitched forward and hit the sidewalk in the West Berlin district of Neukolln, in the American sector.

A lone West Berlin policeman on patrol near the scene, fired several shots into the East sector in an attempt to give the youth cover. The officer was slightly injured by concrete fragments splintered off the wall.

The East Germans put up a water cannon barrage to keep West Berlin police and reporters from approaching the hole in the wall.

Arthur Mayse

Youth, as Bernard Shaw observed, is wasted on the young. Conversely, I'm not sure that a man who has left his greenstick days a fair distance behind should be asked to help choose this year's Miss Victoria.

For one thing, the notion's redundant. I picked my Miss Universe while she was still in ankle socks, landed her after a sterner campaign than the wariest trout ever required of me, and have since regarded other females as a mere pleasant garnish to the scenery.

In other words, I've got it made... so what's the sense of sacrificing a number of evenings just to look at a male undergrad is lucky to achieve his sheepskin unhooked.

Reviewing the situation, I suspect that a misapprehension has gone abroad. The Miss-Victoria Pageant isn't one of those vulgar beauty contests. True, the winner does walk away with some pretty nice loot, and is likely to be plagued with offers to model and the like. But to allay any fears that dignity and decorum are out the window, I can't do better than quote from the Junior Chamber of Commerce pamphlet.

"Miss Victoria," it tells us, "is the typical Canadian girl. She symbolizes the youth of our nation — their dreams, ambitions and ideals."

Elsewhere, we learn that the contestant, along with a heck of a lot of other benefits, undertakes experiences "which will develop in her a charming gracious personality—an assurance and poise — an understanding of people which will aid her in all her undertakings throughout her entire life."

This is elevating as all get out, and I'm not questioning a word of it. But it leaves me obscurely depressed somehow, perhaps because I'm not a very good judge of talent.

So what I propose to do is pick the prettiest, nicest girl in sight. As for talent, if she's smart enough to spell cat with no more than two errors, she gets my vote.

And as for Mr. Gough, I suggest he turn his attention to the sabotage being inflicted on our young people by certain Chant report ushers that ought to bring every school official in the province out fighting.

(I didn't really mean it about those Bluenose girls. Just needing, in the hope that a bunch more of our Victoria daffodils will step out to be counted.)

DESTRUCTION of McNutt dairy at Wilkinson and Interurban, now a landmark, is scheduled to take place any moment. These and other buildings on property of Byron McNutt will be destroyed by order of Saanich council under provisions of the Municipal Act.

FIRST of the McNutt buildings was consumed in flames Wednesday.

MINESWEEPERS TO KEEP BUSY

Victoria's host of boat watchers along the Dallas Road waterfront will have a pair of navy ships to discuss for the next week.

The minesweepers Fortune and James Bay have been assigned a series of harbor approach exercises commencing Friday and continuing to Thursday, April 25.

They will operate in the area from Esquimalt Harbor to Race Rocks and Trial Island. Each will be towing mine disposal paravanes, and other shipping is warned not to pass within 500 yards of either beam, or to cross ahead or astern at a distance less than 1,000 yards.

The provincial government will be asked by Victoria Labor Council to appoint a public defender for people who can't pay for legal expenses.

The move, similar to a previous recommendation from council some years ago, was suggested at a Labor Council meeting Wednesday night by Civic Employees' Union delegate Charles Thompson, who spoke on behalf of senior citizens' groups.

He drew attention to the fact that often people of limited income are unable to go through with court or other legal proceedings due to the heavy cost.

Another delegate said legal aid, offered as a service of the Law Society, could be given free to deserving people.

A delegate said people should not have to beg for help, but know that aid would be available through a public defender if needed.

Council will inform B.C. Federation of Labor of the request for possible endorsement by the federation's annual convention.

Last year's Easter Seal campaign total of $13,300 has almost been reached this year it was learned today.

Contributions to date total $11,600.

"There is every indication we will at least equal the amount collected last year because a lot more money comes in after Easter has passed," a campaign spokesman told the Times.

The B.C. Society for Crippled Children, which uses Easter Seal money to keep Buses in operation and send children to summer camps, is hoping for pledges from the Greater Victoria area will eventually total $15,000.

I could wish, though, that the venue wasn't Victoria. This isn't to imply that our girls aren't talented; only that they hide their light under a bushel.

Maybe it's our soft, energetic climate. In any case, I can think of no other city in Canada, or the U.S. either, where talent contest sponsors are required to pursue their quarry along downtown streets with oversize bumper nets.

That's less of an exaggeration than you might imagine. In Calgary, Winnipeg, Montreal and even Toronto, the talent would come flocking. In Halifax, home of Canada's most noteworthy feminine talent, those long-stemmed South Shore Bluenose girls would swarm to the challenge with seagull cries of pleasure.

But not in Victoria, oh no! Here, the talent inclines to seek the shade. School superintendent Gough didn't need to

John D Gives Saanich Youth Certificate As Good Citizen

A Saanich youth received a good citizen certificate today from Prime Minister Diefenbaker at Ottawa.

John Stanlake, 18, was one of nine young men and women from 4-H Clubs across Canada, who were honored.

He is a member of the Saanich 4H Jersey Calf Club and will represent B.C. 4-H Youth at a junior farm clubs conference at Washington, D.C., next week.

The eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken E. Stanlake, 702 East Saanich Road, John is a grade 13 student at Claremont High School.

He plans to enter University of B.C. in September and plans on a degree in agriculture.

SHORT SPEECH

Mr. Diefenbaker made a short speech to the group, which is at present en route to the Washington meeting.

The prime minister remarked on his removal from office through the democratic process of elections and said this contrasts with similar changes of government in other countries. He said while the change here is "almost imperceptible" in many countries it is marked by forceful overthrow and liquidation of political opponents.

Council received the last opposing petition this week — 47 property owners on Hampshire between Oak Bay and Cranmore.

Only one stretch of street went unopposed as projected under a new method of cost sharing in local improvements — block-long part of St. Ann between the fire hall and Cranmore Road.

Previously rejected were Monterey between Oak Bay and the fire hall, St. Ann from Cranmore to Bowker and Hampshire between Cranmore and Bowker.

The municipality has up to four years in which to proceed with the approved piece, which has never had a permanent local improvement for side walks, curbs, uniformly paved street and ornamental trees.

Roll of the PTA at Monterey School will be discussed in a meeting of the association Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Temporary changes in the Victoria-Port Angeles schedule of Black Ball Transport's Mv. Coho have been announced for this weekend.

The ship will remain in Seattle Saturday night to have new, five-blade propellers installed to replace the older-type four-blade wheels.

To allow time for the change, the 7 a.m. trip from Port Angeles, and the 9 a.m. departure from Victoria will be cancelled. Regular service will resume with the 11 a.m. Port Angeles and 1 p.m. Victoria departures.

Four out of five proposed local improvement projects on three Oak Bay streets have been rejected by frontage owners.

Dairy Farm Buildings Set Fire by Saanich

Neighbors Protest Condemnation Order

By IAIN HUNTER

A Saanich small-scale dairy farmer discovered Wednesday that he could not prevent the municipal council from tearing down his farm buildings.

Armed with a council order, workmen moved onto the property of Byron McNutt, at 4143 Wilkinson Road, and began to tear down and burn every one of the buildings which comprise his dairy.

The demolition follows condemnation of the buildings as unsightly, unsanitary, or unsafe under the provisions of the Municipal Act.

Mr. McNutt, who lives on Grange Road, does not understand how the municipality can invade his privacy in this manner.

CRYPTIC SIGNS

Neither can neighbors who have come to regard "Barny" McNutt and his ramshackle property, bordered by cryptic signs, as "part of the landscape."

Mr. McNutt thinks hostility from Saanich council stems from the day his herd was found to be infected with a disease called brucellosis.

This is a blood disease in cattle which can cause undulant fever in human beings who drink the milk from infected cows.

The bearded farmer boasts that at one time he had 40 head on his property. He has only 16 cows today.

From the doorway of one of the condemned sheds he faced a reporter and photographer Wednesday afternoon.

"They take my cows away one by one, but I try to replace them," he said.

NONE HERE

"They think that by burning up all my buildings they will get rid of the disease. But I know there is no brucellosis here."

And he has a declaration to that effect from the federal department of agriculture, dated March 22, to prove this.

Mr. McNutt said he had no warning that his property would be invaded Wednesday morning.

He pointed to the team of workmen feeding what remained of a shed into a roaring fire under the eyes of two Saanich policemen.

"Do you know what Communism is?" he asked. "Well, this is Communism of the capitalistic variety."

BIG BUSINESS

"This is the way big business moves in on the small farmer and destroys everything he has. This shows you why there are none of us left," he declared.

"Suddenly these people appeared and said they were going to tear down my buildings. I couldn't stop them, but I guess I stopped the police from coming on to my property by demanding to see a warrant," he said pointing to the officers on the roadway.

"Those houses don't do anyone any harm. Sure they're falling down, but I would have repaired them if they hadn't taken away my bread and butter."

He was asked what he would do with the cattle and property when the demolition was completed.

"I don't know what I can do. But I do know that in the end I will win."

For a moment he became belligerent, then he looked at the burning lumber.

NOTHING LEFT

"But what have I got to live on?" he asked. "There'll be nothing left by then."

Some of Mr. McNutt's neighbors are not quite so resigned.

"It's a damned crime that anyone should be able to destroy a man's private property," Mrs. Juanita Mahaffy said.

She has been living across from the McNutt dairy for 12 years at 1176 Dunsterville.

"We don't find it offensive," she said, speaking for a knot of nearby residents gathered at her house. "I'd like to know just how that bloody council can do a thing like this without even asking the neighbors."

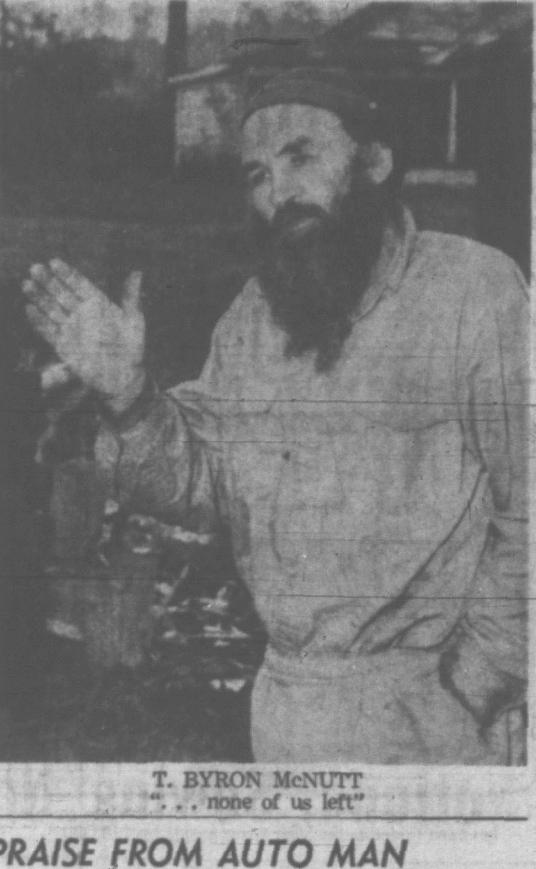

"There wasn't even a petition," she charged.

OWN CONCERN

Mrs. Kathryn Martin, 1265 Dunsterville, who has been a neighbor of Mr. McNutt's for 30 years, said the matter of the diseased cattle was different "as it concerned public health, but these buildings are their own concern."

"Barny is part of the landscape—they can't do this to him," she said.

"And he has an 80-year-old mother living with him: this is killing her," she added.

PRAISE FROM AUTO MAN

Canadians Need Not Take Any Back Seat'

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Canadians have grown up with an inferiority complex about their abilities, particularly in the field of secondary manufacturing, according to Earl K. Brownridge, president of American Motor Company of Canada, Brampton, Ont.

This feeling, he said, in an interview in Victoria today, is the result of Canada so long being engaged principally in the export of raw materials. Canadians also must get out and see the world and find out what they can sell in other countries, Mr. Brownridge claimed. Results of trade missions have been spectacularly successful in bringing new business to Canadian manufacturers and much more can be done along this line.

UNIQUE FILM

Mr. Brownridge, who was president of the Orenda engine division of A. V. Roe Company before joining American Motors in 1960, brought with him to Victoria a unique film to show to Victoria Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel at noon today.

Titled "Brampton Makes a Car," it is the first film ever done about the auto industry in Canada.

It has excited considerable interest, Mr. Brownridge said, and is being taken by the National Film Board for television showing as well as by the Ontario department of education.

In addition to showing the manufacture of autos at the American Motors plant, the film gives Mr. Brownridge's philosophy, in interviews, on the role of secondary manufacturing in Canada.

IN CUBA

Soviet Troop Pullout Denied

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a direct challenge of President Kennedy's reassurances on Soviet troop withdrawals, Senator Kenneth Keating charged today there has been "no substantial reduction" of Russian military forces in Cuba since mid-November.

Keating, a New York Republican, said in a speech prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors that he has information that new Soviet arrivals have about matched the departures.

"There were and are in the neighborhood of 17,000 men there," said the senator. "No functional units have been withdrawn."

Kennedy, who will address the editors' annual meeting Friday, told his April 3 press conference that 4,000 Russian troops had left in the preceding month, in addition to the 5,000 pulled out in November.

At the height of last fall's crisis over Russian missile bases in Cuba, there were an estimated 21,000 to 22,000 Russian troops on the island. Thus the remaining total of only 12,000 or 13,000.

"There is no reliable evidence whatsoever of a decline in Soviet military strength or capability since those first withdrawals in November," Keating said.

He charged also that some U.S. Navy ships have specific orders not to play searchlights on the small vessels which he said constantly ply Cuban and Caribbean waters at night. He mentioned "navy personnel" as his source of this information.

Despite U.S. surveillance designed to block the shipment from Cuba of "weapons, personnel and other tools of subversion" to other Latin American countries, Keating told the editors:

"None of these ships are ever searched by U.S. patrols."

"How can we hope to get evidence of support of subversion if we don't investigate these small scale but very numerous operations?"

MLAs BUSY
Inquiry
Verdict
Soon

By FRANK BUTTER

(See earlier story page 15)
Verdict of the highway graft inquiry is expected by weekend.

The 13 MLAs on the inquiry met this morning at 9:30 for their second in-camera session.

They planned to meet again at 2 p.m. and tonight in an effort to come to a speedy decision on the report they will make to the cabinet after six weeks of investigations.

The next cabinet meeting is Monday, and it is likely that the report will be made public immediately afterwards.

The inquiry moved today from the law courts, where its public hearings were held, to the legislative buildings, where it first sat as the House public accounts committee.

Today's meetings were in the Social Credit caucus room.

The public hearings ended at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday. The MLAs met privately until 4:45

GENERAL APPROACH

They discussed the general approach they would make to their report.

Today they got down to the meat: whether or not the allegations of graft against Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi and his men are true.

Mr. Gaglardi was heading for Kamloops later today, but said he will be back in Victoria next week.

Social Credit members of the inquiry feel that it will not take long to assess the evidence heard in the past six weeks. They believe their report could be ready late tonight.

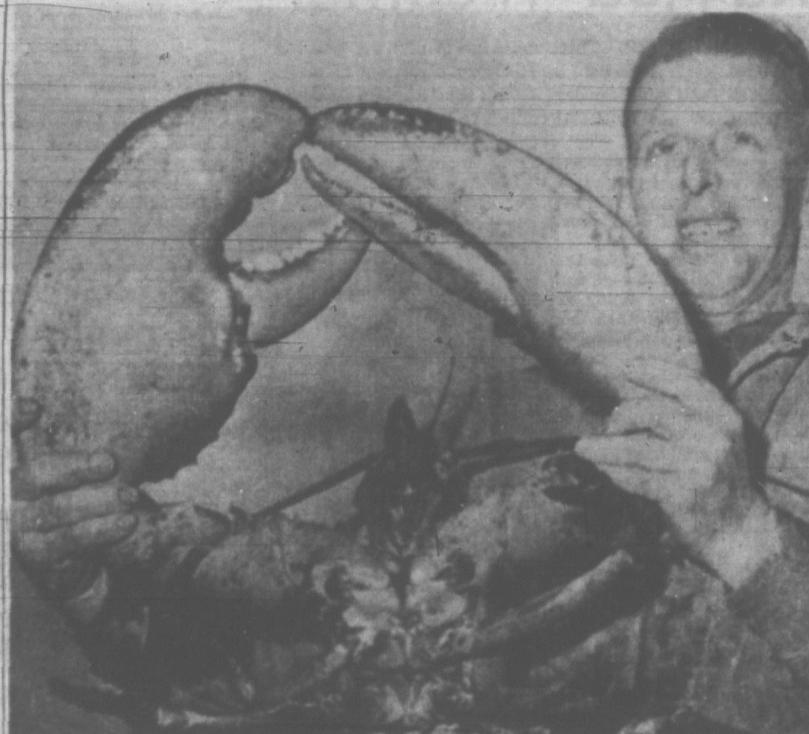

But Opposition MLAs say it will probably take until Friday.

Nearly all the questioning from the MLAs at the inquiry came from the New Democrats and Liberal leader Ray Perault.

It is likely that they will want more time to discuss the answers.

The Socreds have an eight-to-five majority on the inquiry.

It is possible that the opposition members might file a minority report if there is any disagreement. If so, it was understood that it would be made public immediately

Solar Power From Moon?

LONDON (AP)—Soviet scientists have plans for a solar power station on the moon, Moscow radio says.

Huge mirrors would focus the sun's rays on a special device with a power output of several billion kilowatts. This is hundreds of thousands of times more than the power output of the largest power stations we have on earth today.

Soviet scientists envisage re-laying the power to earth by electricity.

radio with a new device called the Maser.

Maser converts electric energy into a radio wave. Maser means: "Microwave amplification by stimulated emission of radiation."

"Such a radio beam easily passes through outer space and slips through the earth's atmosphere. At the end of the stage special devices on earth will re-convert the radio beam into electricity."
